People who take no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants.—Macaulay.

To all past and present Officials, — Presidents, Secretaries, Treasurers, Committees, Etc., Etc., of the Kinsey Organization, whose Cooperation, Loyalty, and Devotion have made the Corporation a Success is this Volume dedicated by the Historical Committee.

THINK

Be thankful that you have a "block";
Be thankful that you're not a goat
Who's fool enough to butt a rock,
Or down you flat and eat your coat.
Your head's for more than butting in;
It's not a rack just for your hat.
If you can think, your head's akin
To atom-force, and such as that.

The 'lectric light; the aeroplane;
The phonograph; the radio;
And jets, and such; - - - were in men's brain,—
All there, - - - before they were a "go."
Your pate's above your neck you know;
And never meant to butt a rock.
Just use your head aright, and show
You, too, have got it in your "block."

—Wm. Kinsey.

P R E F A C E

Volume II of A History Of Jacob Kinsey (Jacob Kintzy) and His Descendants is a work of revision, and bringing the Kinsey history up to date, after a period of twenty-two years from the publication of the first History. A new generation has since been born. The former generation was then maturing, and preparing for a life's career. Records and write-ups of that generation should be made and preserved in a permanent way such as a history. Also deceases; and noteworthy careers and achievements should be preserved in family annals. Also it is a mark of proper pride on the part of family clans to so preserve genealogies and history; magnifying their virtues and memorializing them in such ways as to engender high purpose and resolves in posterity.

As in the former History, there are numerous chapters in the present volume of an academic and essay nature setting forth economic and social conditions back in the days of our forefathers when the Nation was being born; and when homesteads were being carved out of the wilderness. Numerous chapters will be flashlights on those early days. The book will thus be of much interest from angles other than mere names, dates, and bare biographical facts. The pattern of the book should prove informational, inspirational, and challenging to the present generation; and gratifying and comforting to those of mature years, and senescence.

—The Historical Committee, 1956.

Introduction

The writing and compilation of Volume II of the Kinsey History is not as difficult as that of the first Volume, due to the fact that much of the source for the materials is confined to the past twenty or more years. However, some of the substance of the earlier chapters does delve into the times and conditions before, during and after the Revolutionary War; and also during the frontier days of our county settlements. In the former history death had closed the doors to much family history.

The chairman of the Historical Committee thought when the first History was written that he would never again write another; not that it was not delightful and interesting, but because the work was difficult due to a lack of non-cooperation on the part of many of the kin. Unanswered questionnaires, unanswered letters, partial replies, lethargy, etc. We still have some of that to contend with, and consequently makes for an imperfect and incomplete history. David Livingstone spoke in the writer's tongue when he said: "Those who have never carried a book through the press can form no idea of the amount of toil it involves. The process has increased my respect a thousand-fold, I think I would rather cross the African continent again than undertake to write another book."

But with the increased interest in family history, and the fondness for delightful kinfolks I found, we found ourselves writing again. The writer felt also that recording our virtues might be something of a dynamic to our posterity to strive toward marked manhood and woman hood.

The Historical Committee has helped to lessen labors. The filling out of questionnaires has been quite good. Minutes and records of the two past decades are available. The Bedford Gazette still proves a valuable source of information. We mention also Omwake's "Conestoga Six-Horse Bell Teams, 1750 - 1850" as a fruitful source of history as to roads, and road making; wagoners, and arteries of commerce. "Colonel Henry Bouquet and Colonel George Washington", by Rev. Cyrus W. Court; County and State Records; also good sources of information which has been compiled on Captain John Frazer and wife Jean. Names, dates, etc. from the data and research on Capt. John Frazer, his wife Jean and descendants from Elsie Ellwood Warden of Southmont, Johnstown, Pa. are gratefully recognized and appreciated. Also we thank Annie Ellis Camp-don for granting permission to make certain quotations from her classic narrative poem: "Heroic Pioneers." And to Mrs. Dora Williams Mowry for the picture of her great-great grandmother, Jean Bell - McClain - Frazer - Delapt (Dunlapt), and information are we most thankful. The Johnstown City Papers; Kinsey History Vol. 1; Magazines; etc. also yielded information and historical facts, data, etc.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to Mrs. Evelyn Omwake Bosworth, Cincinnati, Ohio for granting us permission to make quotations from her father's book: "Conestoga Six-Horse Bell Teams 1750-1850". Thanks to all kin for their cooperation in filling out the Questionnaires. We are thankful to the following for the extra help in securing data, facts, clippings, etc. from Newspaper, books, family scrapbooks, personal visitations to collect questionnaires, and other information: Mrs. Jessie Kinsey Egolf; Johnstown, Pa.; Daniel M. Kinsey, Johnstown, Pa.; Prof. C. Ernest Kinsey, Armagh, Pa.; W. Wilson Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; James M. Kinsey (deceased); George Kinsey Smith (deceased); Dr. E. D. Kinsey, Evans City, Pa.; Joseph Kinsey, Johnstown, Pa.; Ford F. Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; Jeanne Kinsey Boyd, Ligonier, Pa.; Wade H. Kinsey Jr., Reynoldsville Pa.; Ida Kinsey Shaffer, Corriganville, Md.; Dr. Frank R. Kinsey, M. D., Lewistown, Pa.; Wilbert A. Kinsey, Johnstown, Pa.; Garfield Small, Johnstown, Pa.; Alva Dean Kinsey, New Paris, Pa.; Alfred C. Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; Vernon R. Kinsey, Schellsburg, Pa.; J. Christopher Kinsey, Schellsburg, Pa.; Margaret Kinsey Bates, Ligonier, Pa.; Herman Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; George Kinsey, Wayne, Ohio; Glenn M. Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; Erma Mae Mills, Kingsley, Iowa; Blanche Kinsey Swick, Ajo, Arizona; Gilbert Kinsey and wife, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Susie Kinsey Zimmers, deceased; Edmond Lukens Kinsey, Surf City, N. J.; Wade H. Kinsey, Sr., Ligonier; Cicero L. Kinsey (deceased); Erma Kinsey Hutchins, Fostoria, Ohio; Ruth Kinsey Wollam, Portage, Ohio; Mildred Dailey Kinsey, Wayne, Ohio; Ross Kinsey, Ligonier, Pa.; Etc.; Etc.; Etc.

We are indeed grateful for these colaborers. If any one who merits its honorable mention and has been overlooked, it has not been intentional. Let us labor on and make the Family Tree bear better fruit. However, as someone remarked, when we climb the family tree we will always find more or less "nuts" up there. And referring again to a statement made in our first history made by the late Bishop William Quayle, who said: "I once started to climb my family tree and found a man hanging on the first limb, and so didn't go any further." Another reminds us that there is great disappointment in family trees. If the search goes back far enough, each person will discover that his mother was a thief; his father a receiver of stolen property; and his elder brother a murderer for Eve was our mother, Adam our father, and Cain our elder brother.

However it may be, we must make the tree better. As the great English philosopher, Herbert Spencer, once wrote: "The wise man must remember that while he is a descendant of the past he is a parent of the future." "Nuts" and what have you, are common to all genealogies and family trees. As we improve the Tree, so will the nuts be improved.

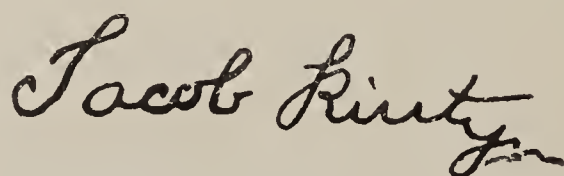

Thus is Volume II of the Kinsey History introduced; and it is the prayer of the Committee that the book will prove a help, challenge and blessing to all.

—The Historical Committee, 1956.

The Immigration To America of Our Direct Ancestors, Jacob Kinsey and Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey

In our first Kinsey History we stated that the exact year, name of ship, and port of landing in America was still undetermined. In the meantime, and before issuing the present volume further research has been made, but to no avail. Our conclusion now is that since "Maryland never kept any record of entries of ships and passengers. It would be impossible, therefore, for me to tell you on what ship and what date Jacob Kinsey arrived in Maryland." —Roger Thomas, Senior Archivist, Hall of Records, Annapolis, Maryland, Dec. 6, 1955, they must have landed at a Maryland port.

Since the coming of Jacob Kinsey and Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey was more recent than that of many immigrants who came before the founding of the United States government; and since there is no record of them at other ports of landing where records were kept; and since the writer's own father had faint recollections of remarks about his grandparents "coming up from Maryland"; and since the new roads opened up at the time, both from eastern Pa., and eastern Maryland, leading to western Pa., the writer is led to the theory and conclusion that Jacob Kinsey and wife landed at either Annapolis, or Baltimore, Md., where no records were kept, somewhere between 1790 and 1795. An affidavit shows that they were already located at the foot of the Allegheny Mountain (By the Kinsey Gap), by 1795, and they being twenty-six years old. See "A History of Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy) And Descendants," Chapt. III, pages 15, 16, for data also.

Facsimile of his hand-writing.

Schellsburg, Bedford County, Pa.

It is well that we assign the Frontice Piece to Schellsburg and Community, for it was the principal Village of the Kinseys; and further, it was the home of, and vicinity of Catherine Rock, the maternal ancestor of the Westmoreland County, Kinseys. Schellsburg should be an attraction to these descendants, especially, as well as all.

CHAPTER I

Revision And Issuance Of History

The Historical And Archives Committee:

Rev. Wm. Kinsey, A.B., B.D., Chairman and Historian

Margaret Kinsey Bates, B.S., Secretary and Collector of Data;
Garfield Small, Collector of Data.

How The History, Second Volume, Comes About

Since the publication of the first volume of the Kinsey History, 1934, history of greater or less importance was being made; at least, a new generation of Kinseys was being born. And since 1954 would be twenty years since the issuance of the first History, the question of getting out a revised and up-to-date history was raised in the 1950 Kinsey Reunion, resulting in a decision by a Motion, that Wm. Kinsey, and Garfield Small were appointed as an Historical and Archives Committee with instructions and duties as follows: (1) To enlarge the Committee to such number as is feasible. (2) Organize the Committee for effective administration.

The above Committee of two met on the evening of Mar. 26, 1951 and completed its Committee as follows:

Wm. Kinsey, Greencastle, Pa.
Garfield Small, R. D., Johnstown, Pa.
Margaret Kinsey Bates, Ligonier, Pa.
Dr. E. D. Kinsey, Evans City, Pa.
Blanch Kinsey Swick, Ajo, Arizona
Roy Kinsey, Kingsley, Iowa.
George Kinsey, Wayne, Ohio.

It was agreed upon that the first three members of the above Committee constitute the Executive committee, for the simple reason only that these three members could easily meet (living rather closely together) for the transaction of, and carrying out business transacted by the Committee as a whole. However, it soon was realized that the larger Committee was impractical due to being widely separated and expense of travel, So, instead the smaller Committee has done the work by correspondence, and the willingness of the members of the Clan to cooperate by filling out questionnaires, and getting others to fill them.

The Organization appointed Wm. Kinsey as Chairman. Margaret Kinsey Bates was designated as Secretary of the Committee; and Garfield Small as co-laborer at-large.

Each year the Committee reported progress. The first task of the Committee, after organizing, was to get out Questionnaires and distribute them. These blanks furnished the Committee most of the materials for the biographical write-ups. Writing up the chapters of the essay or article type fell to the Chairman of the Committee because it naturally was in his field; also because of the work as done on the first History book.

By the time of the 1955 Annual Kinsey Reunion the Committee was able to recommend the publishing of the second Kinsey History, providing the way was clear to finance the project. The following Recommendations from the Committees Report was passed by the Corporation:

"If in the Judgment of the Organization it can be financed, that the new and revised Kinsey History be issued and ready for distribution at the 1956 Annual Reunion.

The Committee would recommend an edition of 300 copies, cloth-bound, and approximately same style, type and pattern as the first or present History."

The Organization readily accepted the Committee's Report; and expressly to carry out the recommendations of the report as pertained to the publication of the History.

The Printer's approximate cost of an edition of 300 copies of around a 200 page book was in the neighborhood of $650 to $700.

The Organization agreed upon $3.00 a copy for the new book; and the remaining copies of the first History to remain at $2.00 per copy.

The Committee, given the greenlight to proceed with publication of its work felt encouraged; cooperation on the part of members for the most part gratifying; and at no time or in any way was its efforts criticised or obstructed by any adverse criticism. For this the Committee is most grateful. Its biggest handicap was apparent indifference on the part of some. With some others, unaccustomed to reporting, etc.

The work of composing, writing up data, and editing is a titanic task. Few realize the amount of work required. And not only the writing; but overseeing the printing; the physical anatomy of the book; the proof reading of the work, the placing of all cuts; the copyrighting of the book; securing permissions to make quotations from other copyrighted books; etc., etc., all is no small task by any means.

—The Historical Committee.

CHAPTER II

Incorporation of The Kinsey Organization

When it became apparent that it was necessary for an organization, in order to receive bequests, legally, made by Wills for estates, and otherwise, steps were taken by the officials of the Kinsey Organization to incorporate into a Non-Profit Corporation as provided by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Steps were taken in the following manner:

“Ligonier, Pa.
July 30, 1947.

At the last annual Kinsey reunion it was decided to incorporate the clan, in order to make it possible for us to hold real estate and receive bequests. Proceedings have been started on this incorporation in the name of “The Jacob Kintzy (Kinsey) Descendants” and the petition will be presented to the court about October first. At this time the names of the charter members must appear on the petition to be presented to the Court. If you wish your name and the names of the members of your family to appear on this petition as Charter Members please send the names, together with one dollar for each name, to the Secretary at once since the petition will be presented early in October. A considerable amount of money will be needed for this procedure, so we will need your contribution. Only these names will appear and be recorded as Charter Members!”

Yours truly,
W. Wilson Kinsey, Sec.
Frank Kinsey, Pres.
Ross Kinsey, V. Pres.

(Paragraph quoted from circular letter sent to members of the Organization)

“Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the Court of Common Pleas of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, on Tuesday, the 13th day of July, A.D. 1948, at 10 o'clock A.M., D.S.T., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard for the purpose of obtaining a charter of a proposed nonprofit corporation to be organized under the Non-Profit Corporation Law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved May 5, 1933, and the several Supplements and Amendments thereto. The name of the proposed corporation is THE JACOB KINTZY (KINSEY) DESCENDANTS ASSOCIATION.

The Purpose for which it is to be organized are: To provide and furnish for the members of the corporation a place of meeting or assembly for their social enjoyment; to encourage historical research into the genealogy of Jacob Kintzy and his descendants; to foster the preservation of documents, relics and heirlooms; to foster, erect, and operate a museum; to encourage the publication of records concerning Jacob Kintzy and his descendants; to promote the celebration of reunions or any days considered to be historical in the genealogy of Jacob Kintzy and his descendants; to secure historical places for the erection of monuments thereon; to cherish and preserve unity of the descendants of Jacob Kintzy; to acquire by grant, gift, purchase, devise, bequest or other sources and to hold and dispose of such real and personal property as the purposes of the corporation shall require, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by law, for the benefit of the members, and not for pecuniary gain; and for the afore-mentioned purposes to said Act of Assembly and its suppliments. It is a corporation which does not contemplate pecuniary gain or profit, incidental or otherwise, to its members.

The Articles of Incorporation have been filed in the Office of the Prothonotary of Westmoreland County at No. 417 August Term, 1948.

WILLIS E. TOPPER, Soliciter."

The Incorporation was carried out; and the Charter was received from the State, framed, and presented to the 1948 business meeting of the Organization at the same time of reporting the matter to the Organization. The exhibition of the Charter was hailed with delight. Praise and honorable mention was given the official committee who carried out the work, and especially appreciation was emphasized to Jeanne Kinsey Boyd for her much labor and pains in typing, etc. for the execution of incorporation.

The wording of the Charter is given complete as follows:

It is desired that every member of the Corporation, and every kin, will give special attention to the purpose of the Corporation. There are ten or more purpose infinitive phrases expressing the purpose. How inclusive they are, and how well they explain why we incorporated. They should be read and reread often. No longer need it be a question whether one can make a bequest, in a Will, to the Corporation. The trustees can receive and hold such legally, as other property.

Any Corporation when once incorporated should adopt a constitution and a set of By-Laws. Having a Charter, a constitution is not so essential; but By-Laws really are essential and necessary. The set of By-Laws is the guide or regulation for managing the internal affairs and business of the Corporate Body. A Court's interpretation as to matters legal or illegal would be based on the By-Laws of the Body.

The following sett of By-Laws were adopted by the Corporation:

Gong and Gavel

“Picture of the Gong, made by the hands of Rev. William Kinsey, using the Brake Drum of a 19— Automobile; and the Gavel, made from part of an extra stairway baluster, from Rev. Kinsey's, New Windsor, Md., home.”

—Pres. Alfred C. Kinsey, 1956.

THE MONUMENT AT THE ORIGINAL HOMESTEAD

Among some of the worthwhile projects that might be done as suggested in Chapter XII of the first History one was a Memorial Marker erected on or near the site of the original log cabin on the old Kinsey Homestead. This was brought to fruition and dedicated and unveiled at the time of the 1940 Annual Kinsey Reunion, at 11 o'clock A. M. (Reunion was held at Rock Oak Park, a mile south, on the Lincoln Highway.)

The monument is about five feet high, and built of masonry. The bronze plaque contains the following:

INSCRIPTION ON THE MONUMENT

Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy) Homestead

Ninety feet north of this spot stood the first log house in this community; erected in the year 1795 by Jacob and Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey (Kintzy) who were born in Germany in 1769. The homestead contained 439 acres and 87 perches. Patent for the land was procured from the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1851 by Benjamin Kinsey, Administrator for Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy) Estate.

This Marker symbolizes the victories won by pioneer ancestors over the wiles of nature in these parts, in a new and strange land.

ERECTED A. D. 1939

The design of the marker is artful and with good symetry. The name KINSEY is lettered into the base, using thin stones to form raised letters. Wade H. Kinsey, Sr., was the chief masoner. It must be said to the credit of the Waterford group of Kinseys and kin that the major part in the work of erecting the Monument was done. Some from Johnstown, etc., contributed labor also. Distance and duties prevented the writer from contributing labors. His part consisted more of suggestions, etc. by correspondence. Also the honor of having charge of the dedication and unveiling of the Marker was graciously conferred upon him. A good attendance was present; and a beautiful sunshine day added to the sublimity of the occasion. Honor and respect was paid the pioneer couple as their early experiences were reviewed and meditated upon.

The ground on which the Marker is erected has been deeded to the Kinsey Organization Inc., by Mr. Peter McCreary, and son Harry E. McCreary, the present owner of the Old Homestead, and a life-long neighbor and friend of the Kinseys. His kindness and courtesies are most gratefully appreciated.

The following is a copy of the deed to the ground:

CHAPTER IV

Some More History About The Famous Road Passing Through The Vicinity of The Early Kinsey Homestead.

The Dispute Between Colonel Henry Bouquet And Colonel George Washington

The interior of the Pennsylvania Province west of the Alleghany mountains, and Pennsylvania down through the succeeding years owes a debt of gratitude to Colonel Henry Bouquet for giving it a roadway which is now U. S. 30 or the Lincoln Highway, and thus opening up this part of the state to settlement; and an economic trade to the building up of a better livelihood and prosperity.

The story more or less abridged is as follows: The French and Indian War was on, but was somewhat stalemated. General Braddock failed previously; Fort Duquesne was yet to be taken, and the West. General John Forbes was placed in command, by the English. Colonel Bouquet was placed in charge of the First Division. Colonel Geo. Washington had command of the Second Division. Bouquet was at Fort Bedford early in July (1758); Washington was at Fort Cumberland, about 30 or 40 miles south of Bedford. An expedition of the forces was to be made on Fort Duquesne (Pittsburgh). Washington strongly advised Bouquet to make the expedition by the Braddock road from Cumberland instead of taking the time to cut a new road directly through to Fort Duquesne from Bedford. Bouquet did not see it in that light, because of what he considered a military necessity, it being 50 miles shorter; and because of other important considerations, demanded by the situation. Washington bitterly opposed Bouquet's proposition, and some very sharp Correspondence ensued; he could not yield the point with very good grace; and predicted defeat and disaster for the expedition. General Forbes was convinced by Bouquet that the proposed new route was preferable, and Colonel James Burd was sent forward to cut the way through the forest and erect a stockade at Loyalhannah.

It should be stated at this time that Bouquet and Washington were personally on good terms, and did not impugn each others motives. Great and noble as Washington was or afterwards became in the Revolution, and as Father of our country, yet he was human, and as a loyal Virginian, he naturally would work for the trade interests of Virginia, via the Potomac

River, its north fork or branch, thence by the Youghioganny, Cheat, and Monongahela rivers to the head waters of the Ohio River which lead the Ohio Land Company, and whose interests were at stake. (It will be remembered that Geo. Washington's two older brothers were interested in the Ohio Land Company.) The following quotation from Colonel Armstrong's letter to Richard Peters, written from Raystown (Bedford) Oct. 3, 1758, is well to the point: "The General (Forbes) came here at a critical and seasonable juncture; - - - - - The Virginians are much chagrined at the opening of the road through this government, and Col. Washington has been a good deal sanguine and obstinate upon the occasion; but the presence of the general (Forbes) has been of great use on this as well as other accounts. - - - - - Col. Bouquet is a very sensible and useful man."

On October 1, 1784, Washington made the following entry in his diary: "Dined at Mr. Gabriel Jones's (Mr. Jones was the leading lawyer of the Shenandoah Valley.) His opinion is that the easiest and best communication between the eastern and western waters is from the north branch of the Potomack to Yohiogany or Cheat River; and ultimately that the trade between the two countries will settle in this channel. - - - - - No well-informed mind need be told that the flanks and rear of the United territory are possessed by other powers and formidable ones too, nor how necessary it is to apply the cement of interest to bind all parts of it together. - - - - - The way - - - - - is to open a wide door and make a smooth way for the produce of that Country to pass to our markets before the trade may get into another channel. It is a long land transportation to Philadelphia for the people in the interior of Pennsylvania west of the Laurel Hill—none is so convenient as the waterway of the Yohiogany or the Cheat River to the Potomac."

In a letter to Chief Justice Allen, written on the day of arrival at Fort Duquesne, Nov. 25, 1758, Bouquet attributes the success of the expedition in great part to the adoption of his route.

This famous road situation was doubtless the beginning of a struggle for commercial supremacy which has gone forward ever since, and doubtless has its champions and successors in the Pennsylvania Central and Baltimore and Ohio railroads of today, plus the return of the Freight and travel traffic over the Historic Roads: The Lincoln and the National Highways, No. 30, and No. 40 respectively.

We do not wish to detract from the fame or merits of the noble Washington. Under the circumstances his contentions were but natural. However, the logic of events, and the argument of time have vindicated Bouquet and Forbes in cutting the short and direct road to Fort Duequesne.

As Pennsylvanians we should be grateful, and give honor to the firm and prudent Bouquet who did so much to open up the western part of our state to settlement; and giving advantages for military victory and defense along the borders. Doubtless Bouquet's honor was more or less forgotten because the War of Independence soon followed the French and Indian War; and in which General Washington was the man of his time and became the Father of our Country.

Construction of Roads and Turnpikes

The construction of the roads began as told already in this chapter; and as given in "A History of Jacob Kinsey and His Descendants." This part of the Chapter will have to do more with the construction of the roads, and especially the Turnpikes.

Briefly, the road construction, replacing the Indian and pack-horse trails, began around 1755. And being in the midst of the French and Indian War, the roads were really military roads. The road west of Bedford bore the name of "Colonel Burd's Road." The road west of Bedford extended on west to the "Turkey Foot," joining the Braddock Road. The present Lincoln Highway, Route U. S. 30, was doubtless first rebuilt in 1792, from Fort Loudon to Fort Pitt (Pittsburg.) Sections of the Turnpike were built from Columbia to York, thence to Gettysburg, and Chambersburg. In 1815 the "Bedford and Stoyestown turnpike," a slate and limestone road twenty-two feet wide was built. The next year it was continued to Greensburg. Surveyor, Michael Reed of Bedford more scientifically located and graded the road between Bedford and Stoyestown. (Being a mechanic, he used instruments constructed by his own hands.) The turnpike was then built into a macadam road during Governor John K. Tenner's administration. Since then the turnpike has been rebuilt in sections as need required, - - - widening, straightening, grading, and more firmly building the road into an artery of travel and commerce meeting the demands of a new day of modern economic life.

As for the construction of the original turnpikes, a brief description of the making of the National Highway, U. S. 40, extending from Baltimore and as far west as Wheeling, W. Va., and authorized by the National Government, is as follows: sixty feet wide, three inches of broken stone, and covered with gravel and rolled. The work was done by "that great contractor Mordecai Cochran, with his immortal Irish brigade a thousand strong, with their carts, wheelbarrows, picks, shovels, and blasting tools, who graded the commons and climbed the mountain side, leaving behind them a roadway good enough for an emperor."

The stone was quarried along the highway, the places are very noticeable still. The national road proposed by the government in 1797 and finished in 1832, and cost the Federal government $7,000,000. Later, 1831 and 1832 the several states took over the road, and set up toll gates every few miles. And today it is toll again as of the Penna. Super Highway. (The first turnpike to be built, the Philadelphia-Lancaster Turnpike, sixty-four and a half miles, cost $6,200 per mile.) These are interesting comparisons with present day construction per mile.

The Life of the Wagoners

The life of the Wagoners or teamsters of those days was considered a lively one. There was a distinctive fellowship about it according to the ethics and morals of the times. The evenings were usually spent in the taverns conversing, joking, singing, dancing, drinking (usually in moderation), wagering, playing games, eating, and the like. Sometimes an argument led to a fisticuff, when one or the other received a blackened eye or a broken nose. Once in a long while if the whole group got into a melee before the fray ended about every nose was broken, except the nose on the teakettle. The drinking of whiskey, cider, cherry-bounce, etc., would more easily incite such frays. The ethics of settling disputes between two teamsters was usually by the hardened fists, being knocked down and pummeled with the fist until the defeated yelled "enough." The dispute was then considered settled and settled by the combatants shaking hands and passing as friends again. The story is told of one Irishman when pummeled to the point of defeat yelled "hurrah," "hurrah." The victor kept on beating him up until both eyes were blackn'd, nose broken, lips bleeding, etc., when the defeated realized he had to do something about it, revived and resolved to do a new round which resulted in becoming the victor. With the fray now in reverse, and defeat admitted, the victim yells "enough," "enough. when the conqueror said, "Faith, that is the word (enough) I wanted to say but couldn't think of it."

How the wagoners fellowshipped in the evenings is pictured by the poet as follows:

"There were few idle fiddles when
Old wag'ners drank their jolly fill
Of beer and cider by the quart,
And wines and gins of every sort.
And whiskey, measured by the gill,
And cherry-bounce and cider oil,
And bitters spiced with penny-royal.

"Around a blazing hearth at e'en,
Or roaring ten-plate Pinegrove stove,
Those heroes of the turnpike roads-
Those haulers of the heavy loads,
Or weary drivers of a drove,
Foregathered, many a winter's night
In freedom, fun and fond delight.

"They sat in all the different ways
That men could sit, or ever sat;
They told of all their jolly days,
And spat in all the different ways
That men could spit, or ever spat;
They talked of horses and their strength,
And spun their yarns at endless length,

"Sometimes they raffled for the stakes,
And sometimes shot therefor at mark;
A many a foolish wager laid,
And many a reckless swap was made-
Of horses - traded in the dark;
Sometimes disputes ran wild and high,
To bloody nose or blacken'd eye."

—H. L. Fisher,
York, Penna, 1888.

—From Conestoga Six-Horse Bell Teams, 1750-1850.

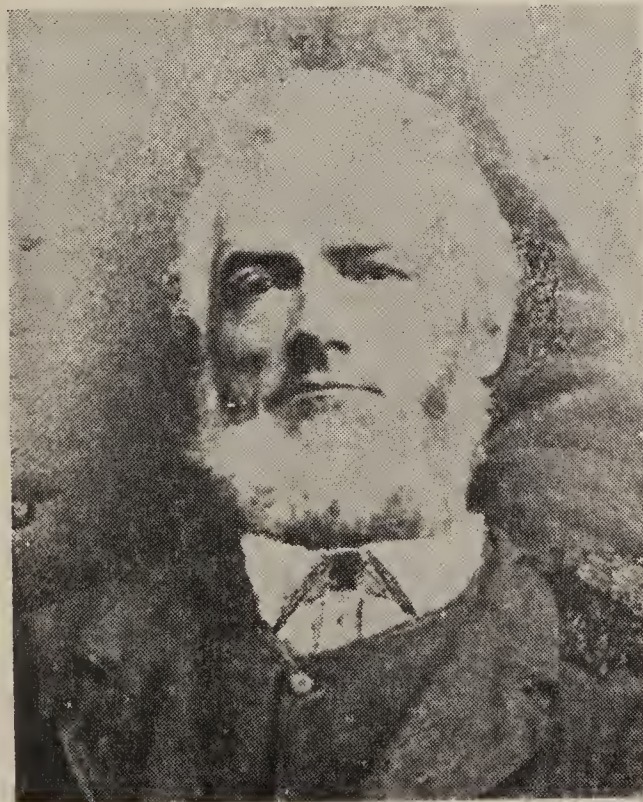

The price of drinks in those days can be judged by an act of the first court of Westmoreland county which was as follows: A gill of whiskey, four pence; toddy, one shilling; West India rum, six pence; cider, per quart, one shilling six pence; strong beer, per quart, six pence.

The writer had an uncle, Adam Little by name, married my mother's sister, and who was a wagoner, over six feet tall, and weighing around one hundred eighty or ninety pounds. He wagoned on the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Turnpike, now the Lincoln Highway. He told us many stories of the Wagoning Days, one of which was about the unscrupulous teamster who would get his whiskey drinks by using an eight penny nail (cut nail with squared end) and driving it through a stave of the whiskey barrel, a bit at a time, then loosening the nail, then driving it a bit farther, and on and on, loosening and loosening, until the nail was driven through the stave; after which a rye straw was inserted and the whiskey sipped. The hole in the stave was then plugged, and stained to the stave color with ground and spittle, so as to be undetected.

ADAM LITTLE, Wagoner.

Another story was told of a teamster who decided to pass through a certain town with a certain type of load without interference, as the writer recalls. He did so by acting the part of a mad man, In the nude, he painted himself completely with mud, head, hair, beard, face and all and chained himself to the the rear of the wagon then whooped, yelled, jumped and kicked, made grimaces, etc. The sight was so frightening that no one had the courage to interfere with the travelers.

That whiskey was plentiful was evidenced by the many distilleries dotting the country. Ten years after the Revolution, 1790 to 1800, there were ninety-four grist mills, and fifteen distilleries in Lancaster county alone. And this was about typical of the State. A David Eby who at twenty-nine years of age, a wagoner, said in 1853 that from Chambersburg to Pittsburg there was a tavern for every mile of the road just as there were on the old Lancaster pike sixty years earlier. (This Mr. Eby was the wagoner who hauled part of the ammunition and arms for John Brown's party to Williamsport, Md., and from which it was shipped to Harper's Ferry. He did not know what his load was at the time.)

The farm on which the writer was born, on the Lincoln highway five miles west of Schellsburg, there was a distillery; and while it was no longer in existence when the writer was born, still the field where the distillery was located, by a spring, was called the "still-house field."

Further evidence of the prevalence of distilleries in that day is the Whiskey Rebellion of Western Pennsylvania (Washington Co.) When the national government, greatly in need of funds, placed a tax on the manufacture of Whiskey (1794), these western Pennsylvanians refused to pay tax; and after tarring and feathering an officer, and flogging another, President Washington sent an army of 12,000 or more soldiers in to enforce the law. Washington himself went as far as Bedford in this expedition. The Whiskey manufacturers fell in line and respected the superior government authority. The insurrection ended without a shot being fired or anyone killed. (This may be an example of government by administration.) The point of citing the Whiskey Insurrection is to show the prevalence of whiskey making and use in those days.

Further, in this same period of time there were from 70-80 distilleries in Franklin county. And they too showed disfavor toward the excise tax on whiskey as well as the Washington countians, but with no concerted insurrection.

It should be said that in those days there was nothing disrespectful in either drinking and making whiskey. Distilling was esteemed as moral and respectful as any other business. Even some farmers had their own plants for making whiskey; and moderate quantities of whiskey was used in nearly every family.

However, the day came when the "elixer of life", being considered harmless, was discovered to be the "water of death". And alcohol as a beverage morally and religiously was "taboo," being a habit-forming drug and a narcotic poison.

Highway Robbers

Then, as now, the Highway had its robbers. There was, around 1811, a famed robber by the name of Lewis who with his party would station himself at the top of a steep hill and waylay the teams as they would pass over, one at a time. In fact the particular place won the name "The Lewis Lookout." It is the writer's opinon that this Lewis was the Lewis of the group of Lewis, Clark, and Conally, the clique of robbers spoken of in the first Kinsey History, pages twenty and twenty-one. The spring by which their camp was located was known as the Lewis Spring, and even to this day. This place afterward was known as the "Daley Post Office.". Further, it is also the opinon of the writer that the place where Lewis and his party stationed themselves was on the Alleghany plateau where one can see for six miles on a stretch of straight road, westward toward Stoyes town. The white top wagons could easily be seen. A Daniel Moyer once encountered Lewis. Also Henry W. Shoemaker, Pennsylvania Folklorist, speaks of General Benner putting Lewis to route: "He was about the only man approached by David Lewis, the robber, who did not run, but was able to put the desparate outlaw to route."

The Heydey of Wagoning

The heydey of hauling freight by the Conestoga Wagon was at its peak from about 1830-1840. The main or big shipping points were Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburg. Hotels did a thriving business. A few of the orginal hotels are still in existance, namely, the hotel and tavern at the Juniata Crossings, built of native stone by Hugh Dennison, 1818; and during the forties when stage and wagon travel was flourishing it was kept by George McGraw. The other is the old Colvin hotel in Schellsburg, now merely a landmark of the Conestoga Days. We note by an old Map of Bedford Co., published in 1861, that in a list of the residents of Schellsburg and surrounding community, and their occupations, Peter Kinsey, operated a hotel. Doubtless this was Peter Kinsey, son of the original Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy); and it was the hotel and tavern at the Burns Mill Village which he operated, P. O. being Schellsburg.

Teamsters who made wagoning their work received from eight to ten dollars per month. The Wagoning was quite a business. In Edmund Burke's statement alluding to the commercial enterprise of Philadelphia says, "Beside the quantity of all kinds of produce of this province which is brought down the Rivers Delaware and Schuylkill, the Dutch employ between eight and nine thousand wagons, drawn each by four horses, in bringing the produce of their farms to this market." If so many wagons surrounded the Philadelphia area, what of the wagons over the rest of the state, and other states? A thriving business! But with the coming of the canals, and the railroads a new day for the transportation of freight and travel was beginning to dawn. An economic transition was about to be ushered in. The freighting of the great Conestoga was not seriously affected until 1852 when the Pennsylvania Railroad opened its through line from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. Wagoners were pessimistic, and voiced their sentiments in song, and their fellings quite vocally, as is indicated in "The Death Song of the Wagoner," a stanza or two of which follows:

"It was once I made money by the driving of my team,
But now the goods are hauled on the railroad by steam;
I hope the devil will get the fellow that invented the plan
To ruin us poor wagoners and every other man.,,

"It ruins wheelrights, blacksmiths, and every other trade;
'Damned' all the railroads that ever was made!
It ruins our mechanics, what do you think of it, then?
And it fills our country full of great rich men."

The above are but two stanazs of the Wagoners' song of cursing. But so it has ever been with scientific advancement and improvements. The highways today are again arteries of commerce and travel; but instead of the Conestoga Wagons and the slow pace of the big horses, it is the big trailer-trucks traveling at fifty and sixty miles an hour, on the finest of concrete roads built for heavy traffic. The mountains are even tunnelled to economize in time and expense. The highway of today as a freight artery, travel, accommodations, business enterprises (hotels and merchants), delectable scenic routes, etc. is a marvel of the age. Such an era for the successor of the colonel Burd Road could not be comprehended by our ancestors when it passed through the community. It is not like it used to be, and never was.

BEDFORD COUNTY THE ANCESTRAL HOME

Whether Jacob Kintzy and wife, Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey, were aware of it or not, in selecting Bedford county as a home-stead they chose well. They crossed the county to its western part, and having seen its mountains and its valleys, its hills and its dales, they were apparently satisfied to locate at the foot of the Alleghanny mountains, and by the Gap which from that time on took the name: "Kinsey Gap." The writer's impressions of the county are given in the following poem. And what is true of Bedford County is true of many of Pennsylvania's counties:

BEDFORD COUNTY

Bedford Co.—

I love her valleys, and her hills;
I love her woodlands, and her rills.
I love her mountains, and her deeps;
Her variegated slopes, and steeps.
Her panoramic views I love
As seen from mountain crests above.
Old Alpine's heights are scarce a peer
To Bedford's beauties in the clear.

Bedford Co.—

How beautiful her springtime dress
When green returns in blessedness.
How beautiful when harvests surge
In golden billows, —amber splurge!
In Autumn, —when she's dressed for night
Is blanketed beneath the white
From north to south, from east to west,
Our Bedford's e'er so gayly dressed.

Bedford Co.—

Did Moses from old Nebo's heights
See more than Bedford here bedights?
A holy land, her vista thrills;
Her springs slake thirst, her streams turn mills;
Her fauna, and her flora rare
Make life abundant, free and fair.
Her heav'ns above, so bright, so blue,
Declare God's splendor tuned to you.

O Bedford County, tell thy tales
Of sacrifice and bitter wails,
When red men tried to ~~say~~ the hand (stay)
Of progress in thy waiting land;
That we may worthy be, and bless
The Giver, and thy nobleness.
Fair Bedford, now, salutes to thee;
And plighted love and loyalty.

CHAPTER V

MONEY AND AMERICAN COINAGE

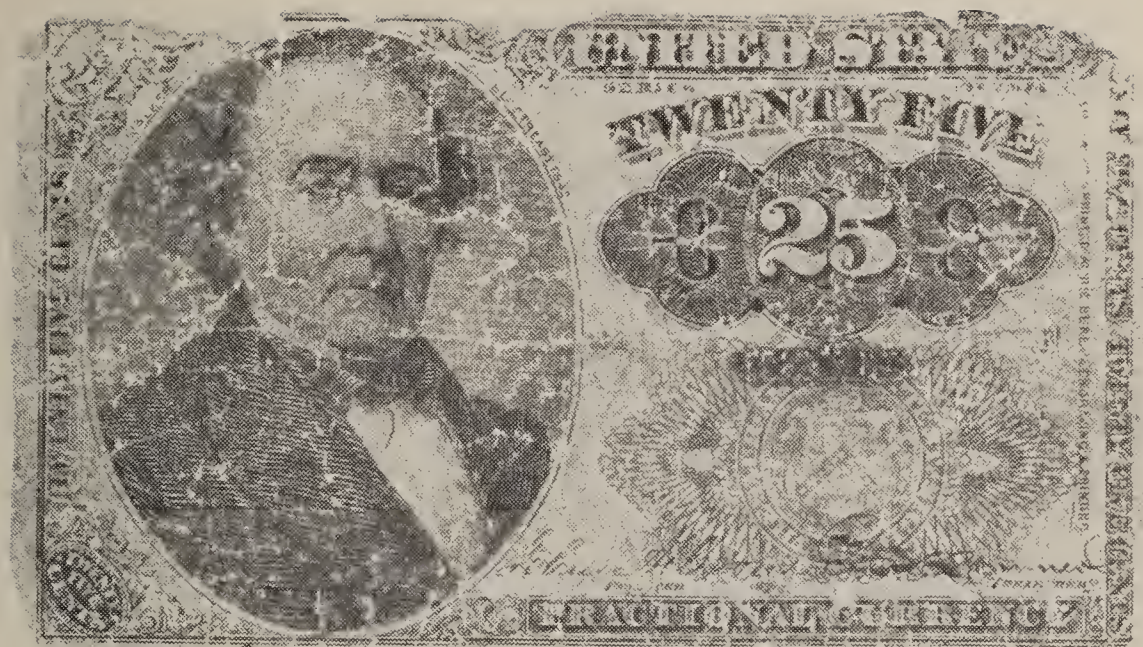

Since the Kinsey Museum possesses and treasures money antiques also speaking to us of the medium of exchange of our forefathers of the Clan, something should be said relative to the history of it.

After 1793 there was money of American coinage. The big copper cent, the quarter, the half dollar, and the dollar were coined. Note and reflect on the big copper cent for example. Would we like them today. (Many folks complain if they receive a silver dollar today, "the big things.")

The writer's father had collected quite a number of the big copper cents, as a hobby. He was called on in his younger days to "lay out" dead people. After the process of laying out the deceased, the last thing he did was to place a big copper cent on each eyelid to keep the eyelids closed. When the body was cold the eyelids remained closed and the coppers were removed. The writer remembers well of father doing that thing lastly in laying out the dead. (The day came when matters of careing for the dead changed, and professional persons legally replaced the neighbor in the community who performed such duties gratuitously.)

About 1830 the U. S. government was able to mint money fast enough to supply its needs, thus the fore-mentioned coins were displaced and were no longer in common use. French, Spanish, and English coins were in common use, and more or less determined the standard of values. There were the French crowns; the Spanish-American dollar which was the standard and unit of the republic. This dollar contained eight reals, or eight eleven-penny bits; and the half real was worth five pence in English coin and this was called the fipenny bit or "fip". The English terms were the pound, shilling, pence, farthings, etc.

Barter was in use also, in the form of printed note or money, and had different values in the different localities and business enterprises, as merchants; iron companies; turnpike companies; etc. At the time of the Civil War this paper money was known as "wild cats" or "shin plasters." They were in denominations of dollar, twenty-five cents, ten cents, etc. The shin plaster in the Museum donated by the writer is a Twenty-five cent piece which was given him shortly before his father's death.

"Shin Plaster"

By the time the Museum is organized and housed there may be many more historic coins donated or lent by others of the clan.

The nature of our History calls for brevity on the history of money in our country, both coin and paper money. The same must be left to the more complete sources for those thus interested. We have said sufficient to explain the money terms as used in the early papers, deeds, contracts, etc. as used on page 27 of Kinsey History: "50 shillings per 100 acres", etc. The states had to become rightly related economically; as do now the world at large, economically. Perhaps some of the ills of the present day is due to the fact that the nations of the world do not have a standard dollar the world around.

CHAPTER VI

Twenty-Fifth Silver Jubilee Reunion

The Twenty-fifth Annual Kinsey Reunion was held August 2, 1952, at Waterford (Firehall), Pa. At this Reunion the special emphasis was upon the fact that it was the Twenty-Fifth Silver Jubilee Reunion. The first Reunion was held in 1923, and twenty-nine years later, the Silver Jubilee Reunion. The continuity of Annual Reunions was interrupted during World War II, due to gas rationing, etc.

The Minutes of the first Reunion, naturally are history-making minutes, and were as follows:

"September 2, 1923

There were 136 members of the family present representing three generations. The oldest member present being Mrs. Margaret Kinsey Weimer who was sixty-nine years of age on that day.

The following organization was made for the next Reunion of 1924:

President — W. H. Kinsey
Secretary — Miss Myrtle Kinsey
Treasurer — Mrs. C. L. Kinsey
Vice President—L. T. Weimer
B. E. Jones
Ernest Kinsey

All, except the Vice Presidents, who were appointed by the President, were elected by the Clan.

The gathering was addressed by Rev. W. R. Corter, Prof. Ernest Kinsey, and President W. H. Kinsey.

A collection was gathered from the members, amounting to $21.42, this being given to the President, W. H. Kinsey, to pay for lumber purchased from L. W. Darr, to use to build tables and benches for the Reunion.

The crowd dispersed deciding to hold a Reunion in 1924 at the same place, the Saturday before the 9th of September.

Signed, Myrtle Kinsey, Sec."

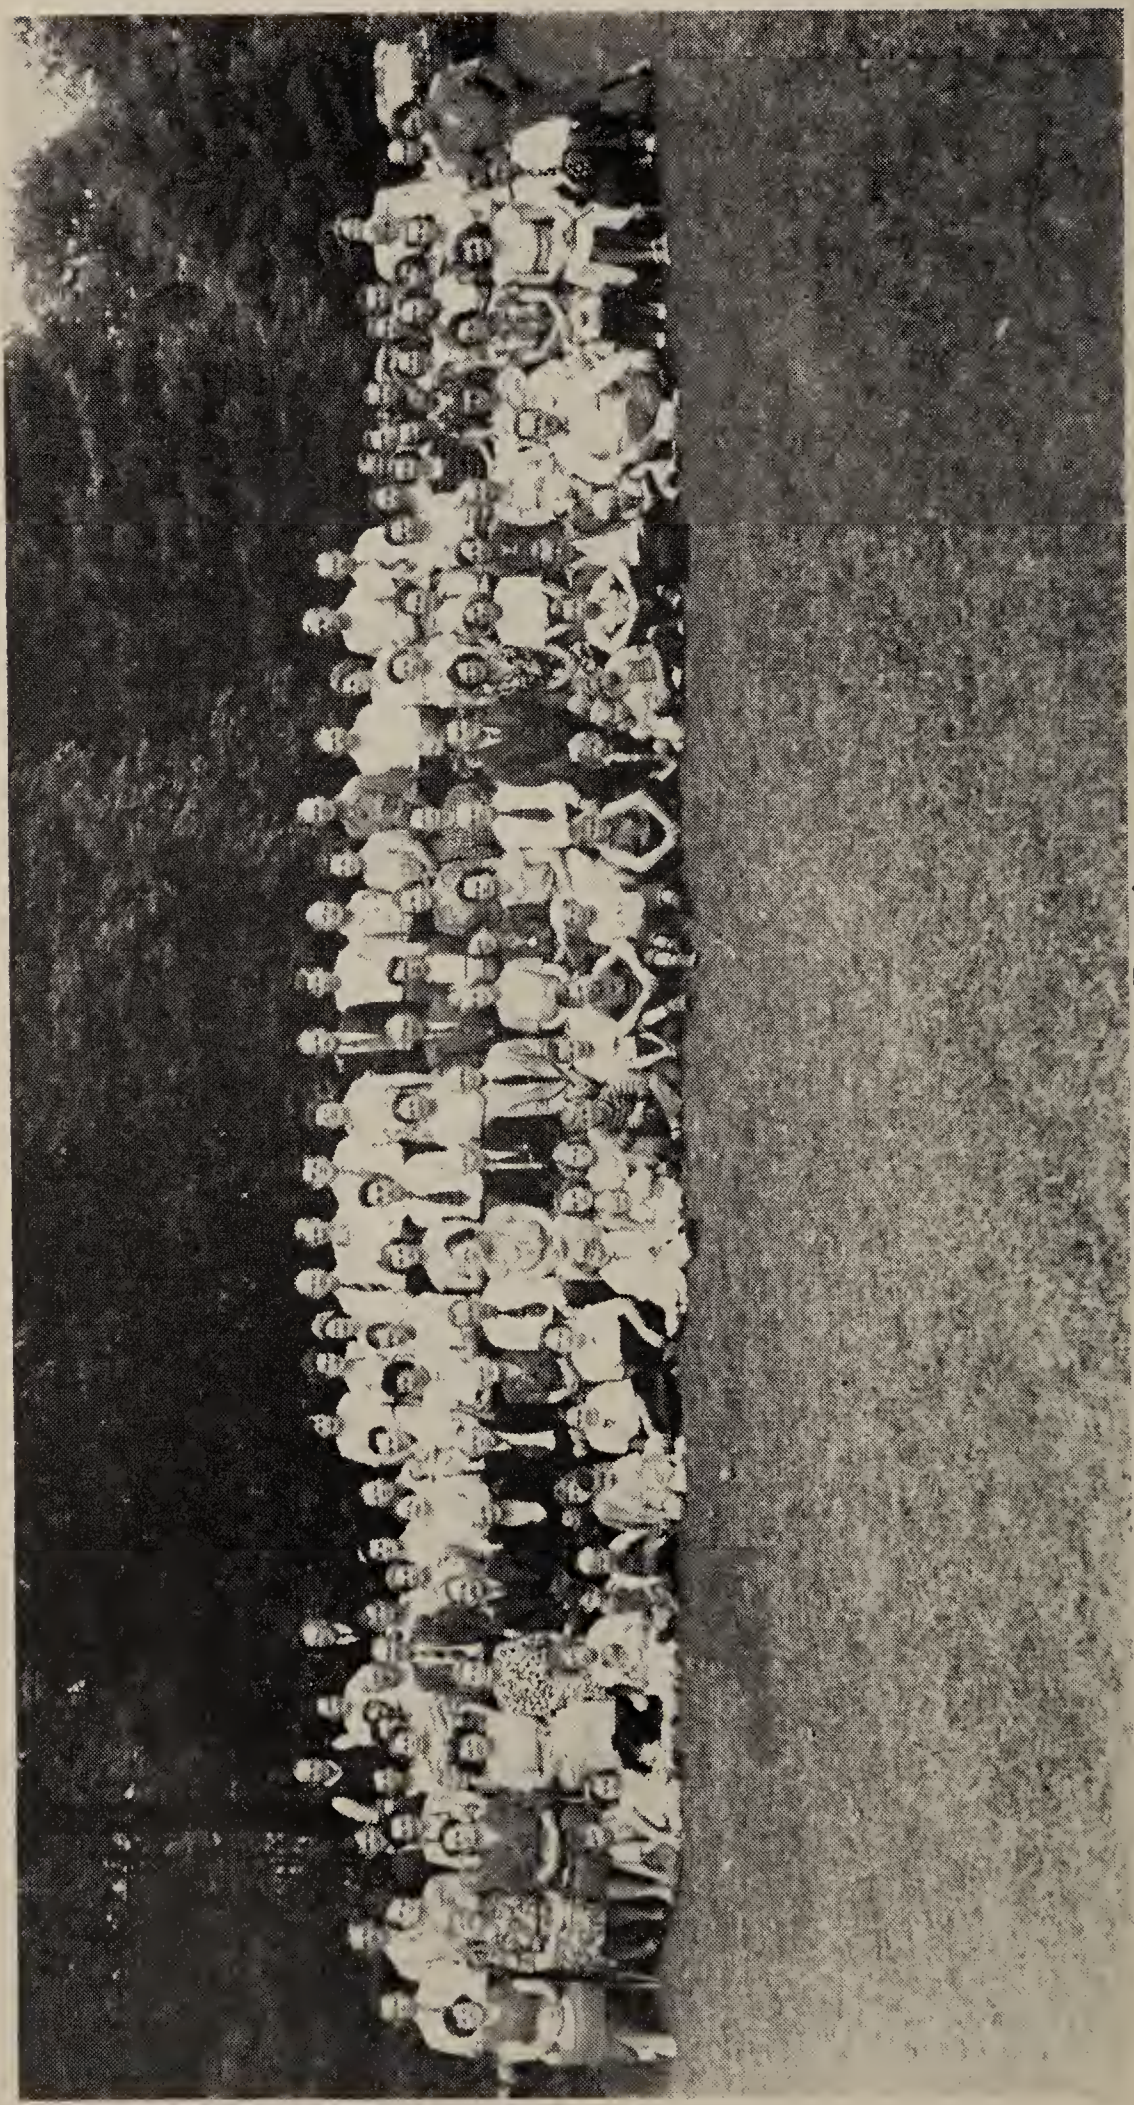

A study of the Minutes of the First Kinsey Reunion shows (1) That the attendance was good, and better than some attendances of the more recent years. (2) That the reunion was confined to the branch of Kinseys headed by Henry Kinsey and Catherine Rock Kinsey of Waterford, Pa. (3) That three addresses were given, indicating that besides food for the bodies (as evidenced by tables") there was a sumptuous spiritual and mental food also provided. (4) A goodly offering for the first Reunion. (5) That all of these features have more or less set precedents for Reunions ever since. Doubtless there were some physical recreation featuring the Reunion also, at least, informally by the youth and children.

However, all is not told by the Minutes of the first Reunion. It seems to be common knowledge that the founder, the one who launched the reunion and brought it into a reality was Wade H. Kinsey Sr. Whatever the thoughts and ideals were that lurked in the minds of other kin, he is the one who caused it to take form and launched it, and was elected its first president, and in later years, elected an Honory President.

Manifestly as the years passed the Reunion idea grew in popularity, and spread to all the Kinseys of the Immigrant ancestors: Jacob Kintzy and wife Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey who migrated from Germany and setteled in the west-central part of Bedford County, somewhere around 1795. And at present the Clan of Kinseys is a Corporation, incorporated as The Jacob Kintzy (Kinsey) Descendants Association Inc. interest has grown through the years, - through rich and interesting fellowship at Reunion times; interesting recreational programs; cultural addresses; Kinsey history; worthy individual achievements; contemplated worthy goals; etc. Obviously there has been a gradual and healthy growth through the years in such a manner that the Kinsey Corporation has won exemplary distinction among other Family Clans.

The Organization has won a good moral reputation. Not only at mealtimes, at business sessions, etc. prayers are offered. One feature of the business program is a Necrological Service. A Christian spirit and atmosphere prevails throughout the Reunion occasions. Preachers, County School Superintendents, lawyers, etc. have frequently addressed the Reunion occasions. It is hoped that the Organization will ever maintain a high moral standard of conduct, and ever carry on in an exemplary way for other Clans; and that her posterity will rise up and call her "blessed".

It is the writer's regret that he was unable to attend the Silver Jubilee Reunion, being in Tennessee at the time, and just closing up a "pinch-hitting" pastorate.

CHAPTER VI - A

Organization Officers From The Beginning

Kinsey Reunions 1923 — 1956

Presidents Terms of Office Place of Reunions

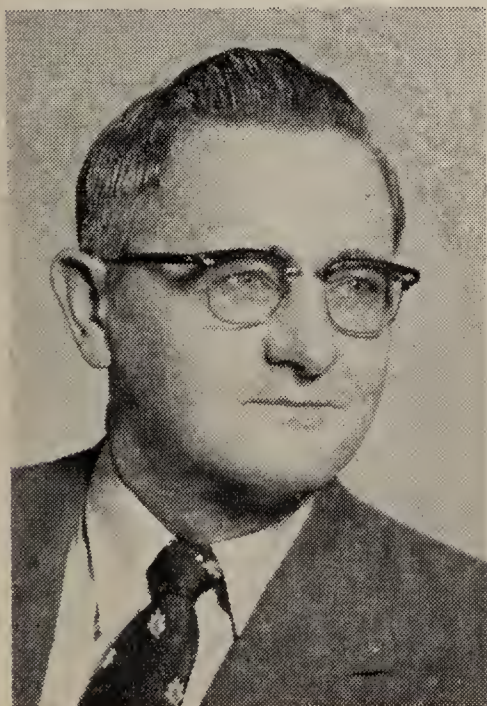

WADE H. KINSEY Sr. 1923 — '25 Park Joy, Waterford

To Wade H. Kinsey Sr. belongs the honor and credit of founding and organizing the first Kinsey Reunion of the Descendants of the Jacob Kintzy (Kinsey) line. At the time it was practically confined to those descendants of his own father and mother, as the Minutes reveal. This founding act, and later activities, reveal the progressive and advanced thinking of Mr. Wade Kinsey. He had initiative and forethought, and visions of a great Clan some day. He worked, labored, and sacrificed to an Organization to fruition.

The launching of the Organization in itself, and giving impetus and vision of the future in itself was perhaps the greatest contribution of his administration. Whatever the visions he may have had for the future, it was hardly possible to propose any legislation for more mature projects; it was more a case of getting the infant Organization to learn to stand and walk.

A. C. KINSEY 1926 — '30 Park Joy, Waterford

Not having access to the records, we do not have knowledge of outstanding or progressive measures or projects of A. C. Kinsey's first administration. However, on the premises of a Juvenile Organization it is a logical conclusion that the biggest task of the president was to see that the young Organization might be secured on a permanent foundation. The real task to see that it live, and not die. This is true of any new Organization.

Doubtless he had visions of the future; he had to create enthusiasm, and a spirit of loyalty among the kinfolk. Being a son of the first president, he was not without his father's characteristics, evidence of which he was one day to be called to the high honor the second time.

DANIEL ROSS KINSEY, 1931 -'32 Park Joy, Waterford

Mr. D. Ross Kinsey's administration consisted of two years. His chief task was doubtless to see that the new Organization survive, for it was but eight years old when he took office. And not much else could be done in a short term of office. However, as we have learned to know this cousin later we venture to say that he was a "booster," and enthusiastic. He is the type of a Kinsey who wants to see things "go." Would that we had more "boosters" and "pushers." Too many of our Clan are afflicted with lethargy, with a high temperature, serious cases. Doubtless his official services were creditable.

FRANK B. KINSEY, 1933 - '36 Park Joy, Waterford
Okewela Grove, Johnstown
1935
Park Joy, 1936

It was during Frank B. Kinsey's administration when the writer was first able to attend a Kinsey Reunion (1934). We witnessed his activities in office for three years. It must be said that Mr. Kinsey was a good, congenial, and able administrator (not saying that his predecessors were not). He was able to create interest and enthusiasm. He was quite democratic, easy of approach, affable, witty, and had a good sense of humor. We feel that there is not a Kinsey who knew him would say less about him. Tributes are given him in the First History; and elsewhere in this History.

Whatever else of constructive measures and projects that he may have launched and put across, we feel that the most constructive work or project that he accomplished was the publishing of the first history, "A History of Jacob Kinsey (Jacob Kintzy) And His Descendants." Being a close friend and closely associated with the writer, and knowing of the long-time interest of the writer in the family history and his work upon it, he became vitally interested himself. He gave encouragement, and finally gave generously of his means that the History might be completed. He was sympathetic, and knew the handicaps and financial limitations of the writer; that the work had to be done mostly as a sideline, fitting in with life's preparations; and as sort of a hobby for an educator, and minister of the Gospel. The main credit must be given to Mr. Frank B. Kinsey for having the Kinsey History for distribution at the 1934 Kinsey Reunion. There were a number of other cousins who backed us up financially (these are recognized later in the History), but it was Frank B. who gave the Green Light to the writer to have the book printed, and it has spoken for itself ever since, and as an outstanding contribution of his administration.

Dr. Frank R. Kinsey, M. D., succeeded Mr. Frank B. Kinsey in the presidency, at the age of 23 years, and the youngest president thus elected to the office. His term of office consisted of eleven years. He was the War-time president, during which time there were no Annual Reunions held, due to gas rationing.

Clan interests continued to grow under his administration, proving a good successor to Mr. Frank B. Kinsey. During his second year Mr. Frank B. passed away,—Jan. 9, 1938.

A few of the outstanding contributions of his term of office are (1) The Real Estate on which the Kinsey Monument stands was procured from Mr. Peter McCreary. (2) The Kinsey Monument was erected, in 1939. (3) Began consideration of the project of a Kinsey Museum. (4) Incorporation interests launched.

Regular and routine matters were dispatched with interest, devotion, and loyalty. As others, he had presidential personality. He was all he looked. Capable and able; pleasing, congenial, and a real ambition to see and make the Organization a success. And since out of office, his interests have not lagged, but increased; backs any project or measure that makes for a greater Organization.

After being out of office of president for nineteen years, Mr. A. C. Kinsey was again elected to the high office of President, and is now serving in his seventh consecutive year of his second period as President. It is common knowledge of course that he is doing a swell job of it. He has the traditional wit and humor of the Tribe. He proves himself capable, patient, and cooperative. He has the spirit of expansion and growth; open and solicitous. Formerly he had to see that the young Organization learned to walk, and survive. Now that the Organization has reached maturity he can give more attention to projects pertaining to perfection. It is no longer a question as to whether the Organization will survive. With him it is now a question as to how the Corporation Organization can be more profitable in a good, clean fellowship; how things worthwhile can be done; and how it can be more exemplary to other like and neighboring Clans. It can truly be said that he has both breadth and depth. As long as we have his kind, and the kind of presidents we have had, we need waste no time on impeachment proceedings.

Relative to outstanding contributions, we mention first of all, the Incorporation of "The Jacob Kintzy (Kinsey) Descendants Association, Inc." in 1949, by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, into a Non-Profit Corporation. The Corporate Body can henceforth hold both Real and Personal property; receive bequests; etc. (2) A second outstanding work of his administration is the Kinsey Museum which is in progress at the present, and with brighter hopes for its success. (3) The third contribution of his administration, and perhaps not least, is the issuing and publication of the second Volume of the Kinsey History. Such a publication means that the Organization's records and activities are made permanent. Genealogy is brought up to date. A heritage is left our posterity.

The Committee, on behalf of the Corporation, congratulates all our Presidents.

CHAPTER VII.

"It Aint Like It Used To Be" Or Then and Now

Time passes, and with it comes changes. "It aint like it used to be" to which some person and paper replied; "It never was." The "good old days" is often heard. When were those "good old days"? In what century, and in what land or nation were they? The "good old days," — were they in the home? or state? or Church? Or all three areas of life? Space in this History forbids an elaboration on the domestic, civil and religious life of the past centuries, as interesting as that might be. The social conditions and economic life of the Kinseys portrayed in this history should be more or less enlightening. Let us note some conditions as they existed in the past and in the communities of our ancestry in the Eighteenth to the Twentieth Centuries inclusive.

There was the Whipping Post. From the Bedford Gazette of 1949 we quote: "From Bedford County's establishment in 1771 until they were outlawed in 1790, the pillory and whipping post were familiar objects on the public square, and many a culprit spent some confinement in the old-fashioned stocks.

The old court records also reveal that some barbarous punishments had been passed down for local use from the cruel laws in force on all English colonies. There are instances where ears were cut off, cheeks were burned, and noses slit.

The punishment for a horse thief was lightened somewhat in 1767, so that the offender was to stand in the pillory for one hour and be publicly whipped with 29 lashes.

Nevertheless Bedford County court records show that two horse thieves received the following sentences. 'That they be taken, tomorrow morning, to the public whipping post between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock, shall receive 29 lashes, to be well laid on, on their bare backs, and immediately be placed in the pillory one hour and have their ears cut off and nailed to the pillory, etc'."

Good old days? Ask Jacob Kinsey and Elizabeth Kinsey who were 21 years old at this time. Doubtless an automobile thief today would say: "It's better than it used to be."

Further, as to Westmoreland County which, however, was formerly a part of Bedford County, had similar conditions to that of Bedford, before and during the Revolutionary War. Hannastown, a hamlet a few miles east of Greensburg, was the first county seat. Here justice was first dispensed, west of the Alleghenies, according to the civil codes. William Crawford, afterwards burnt by the Indians, was the first presiding justice, and Arthur StClair was the first prothonotary.

The first court fixed the price of a gill of whiskey at four pence; toddy, one shilling; West India rum, six pence; cider, per quart, one shilling six pence; strong beer, per quart, six pence.

The jail was made of rough unhewn logs. Punishments were floggings, whippings, standing in pillory or stocks, cropping off ears and branding.

Rape, sodomy, robbery, mayhem, arson, burglary, witchcraft, and concealing of a bastard child were punishable with death as well as murder. —From Rev. Cyrus Cort's Book:

Henry Bouquet and Enoch Brown, pages 88, 89.

Death for rape, robbery, arson, etc. as well as murder,—“worsenow that it used to be?”—ask your foreparents.

There were the Indian Massacres, executed with the tomahawk, scalping knife, gun, burnings, etc. An example or two in John and Jean Frazer's early married days and in their community. From Capt. William Trent's report to Col. James Burd: “Last night came to the mill of Mr. Wilgomoth's, an express to the governor of Maryland, with an account of the inhabitants being out on Patterson creek and about the Fort. The express says: ‘There are twenty killed and taken, and one whole family was burned to death in a house. The Indians destroyed all before them, firing houses, barns, stock-yards and anything that will burn.’” Again from Capt. Trent: “Since I wrote the above another express has come down to get the militia, he says two and forty they buried on Patterson creek, within a few miles of the mouth—they durst not venture further up, but as there is no word from any of them, without doubt they are all killed.”

There were the 18 who were massacred at one time at Fort Bedford; the massacres on Dunnings Creek; etc. Life was rather uncertain for the early settlers, and much of the time they must have been ill-at-ease.

“Better then than now?” Ask Jean Bell Frazer who spent 13 months in Indian captivity, and whose husband (Delapt), and son Benjamin were killed and scalped in the Frankstown Massacre, 1781.

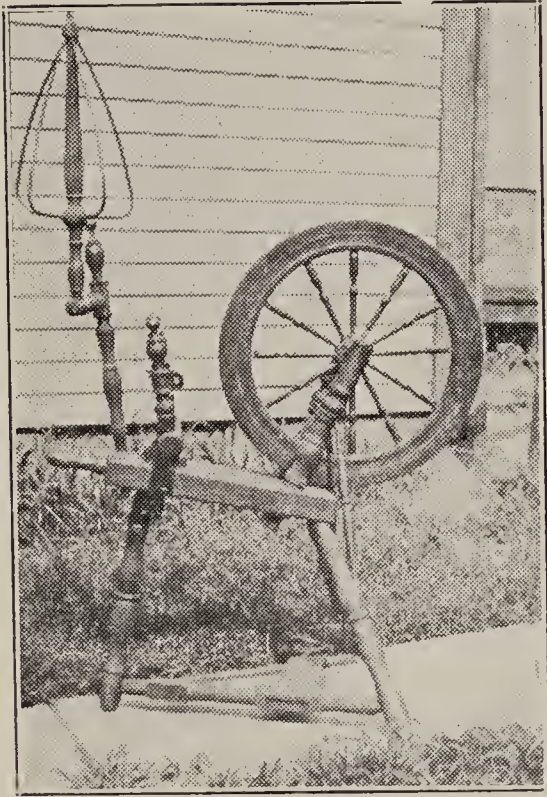

Space forbids multiplying other similar instances. No, "It aint like it used to be," thank God. There are many other things which might be mentioned, such as imprisonments for debts; witchcraft; (and by the church); in home life, it was heating by the fireplace; travel by oxcart; manufacturing by hand; etc. There were some peculiar laws as we think of them now. An example of one such law and which is still on the books in the state of Maryland: It is against the law for a wife to search her husband's pockets while he is sleeping. What the "teeth" is in that law we cannot now say. (The writer left the state of Maryland some years ago but not for that reason.)

Then it was hardships of many kinds. There were fears; inconveniences; sufferings; sacrifices; things barbarous. Now it is home comforts of every kind; modern travel in cars heated, and electrically lighted, and the whole world present by radio, riding on rubber, and enclosed by glass, and 75 miles per hour with reasonable safety (all practically without comparison to ox-cart travel). Now it is the modernized home, travel, farming, surgery. These things, despite the evil in the world today, it is better than it used to be, just open the history and prove the point. The writer is an optimist, not a pessimist; not an alarmist, defeatist, or fatalist. The good in the world and from God will triumph; the devil is under sentence and doom awaits him; right will eventually win; God is stronger than the devil, and the devil will never have the laugh on God. God's work is constructive; the Devil's, destructive. Constructive work takes longer than destructive work. A whole year to build a church; (constructive); an hour to lay it in ashes (destructive) . So is the Devil's work as compared with God's.

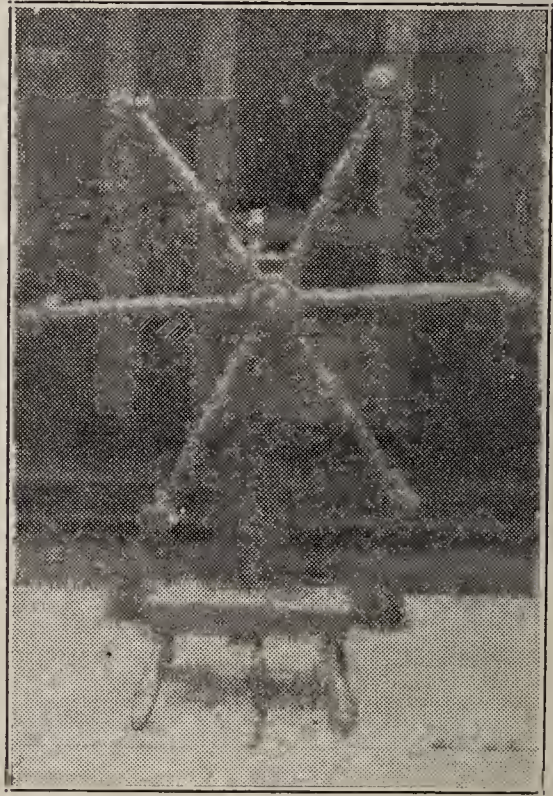

Let us take heart, praise God and be most thankful.

"It aint like it used to be." I prefer NOW to THEN.

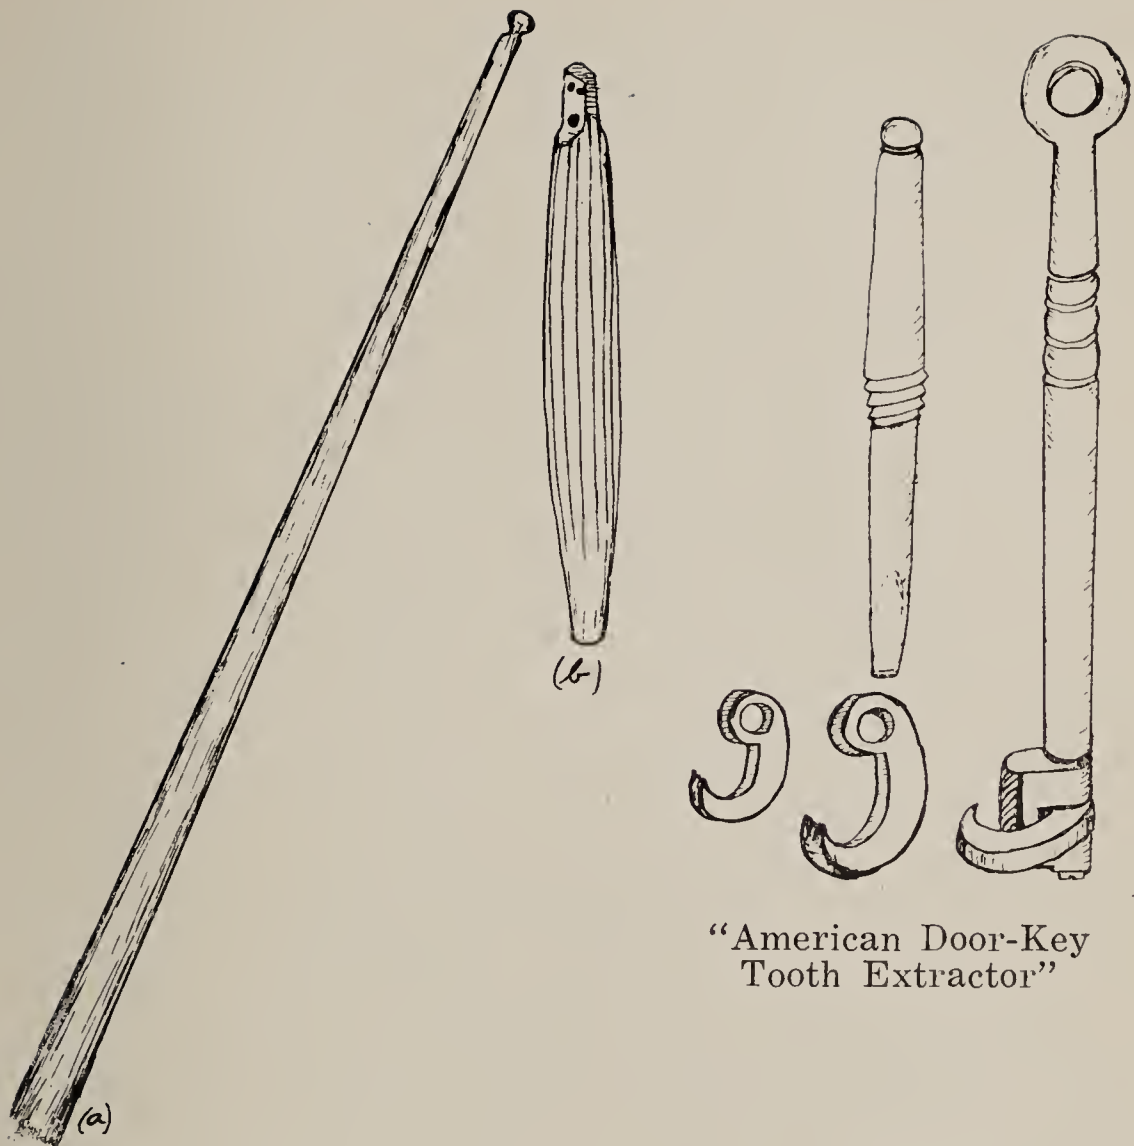

The following pictures show how we got our yarn and stockings "then" as compared with "now." (This spinning wheel and reel were made by the writer's grandfather for his father and mother.)

Spinning Wheel

Reel

Grain Flail: Handle, and Swiple

Forceps

The above antiques are slated for the Kinsey Museum.

The Flail (handle and swiple), methods of threshing out the grain in the days that used to be as compared with modern methods, the Combine for example. The writer had plenty of experience in flailing out grain, — for Ryestraw to tie-up corn shocks, for seed grain, and oats for horse feed. Usually flailing by twos, but occasionally by threes.

Extracting teeth today “ain’t” like it used to be either. The accompanying picture gives some idea how it was done in the days of our fore-parents. The tooth was usually broken off, and side of jaw-bone slivered away, exposed nerves, — all without an anesthetic or deadener.

The successor to the “American Door-Key Tooth Extractor” was the Forceps. See accompanying illustration below. The Forceps, as of the illustration, were used by the writer’s grand-father, and also his father, and experienced their use as about all the brothers and sisters, and all the community, near and quite far sometimes. These Forceps were quite a bit more on the modern order as the picture shows. They are six and one-quarter inches long; weighing four ounces, and have the following lettering stamped or etched on the under side: V - W BRINKERHOOF N - Y These forceps are at present in the possession of the writer’s brother, Joseph Kinsey. The two pairs of Tooth Extractors should be encased beneath glass, and placed into the Kinsey or Community Museum. They would constitute a chapter, in themselves, on Dentistry and aching and decaying teeth back in “The Good Old Days (?)” For a fuller description of tooth-extraction among the Kinseys, see the First Kinsey History, printed in 1934.

Now it is painless, or done while asleep. “Good old days!” When? We prefer NOW to THEN. The writer speaks from experience. He had experiences with the Spinning Wheel, Reel, Grain Flail, and Tooth Extraction with Forceps a bit less ancient than the American Door Key instrument. Scores of other articles and methods might be mentioned showing that it “ain’t like it used to be,” and it never was.

CHAPTER VIII.

Frank B. Kinsey - - - In Memoriam - - - And More About The Great-Great Grandmother of Peter Kinsey's Descendants

Mr. Frank B. Kinsey was given pre-mortem honor in the first Kinsey History. He was cited for his success in business, finance, and religion; and was presented as one of the kin worthy of emulation by posterity. Now, in this volume post-mortem honors are in order. He departed this life Sunday, Jan. 9, 1938. He was in the Father's House when his summons came, at the close of teaching his Sunday School Class; an attack which rendered him unconscious, and save for a bit of rally in the meantime, he passed away at 5:10 p. m. He was deeply interested in religion and was a faithful churchman unto the end, which came rather prematurely, being but sixty-three years of age. However, he lived more in those years than most others who reach four score years.

A man of God was he,
A kindly man, and true.
But being dead he speaks
To all,—to me, to you.
Post-mortem praise to him—
A lustrous clansman he;
To live, and serve, and die
Like Christ of Galilee.

May too we find the clue
He had to reach his goal,
And live the stainless life
As one in Christ made whole.
His God, his Christ, his Book
For him was daily meat.
That hunger too I crave
To live my life replete.

—Wm. K.

Mrs. Myrtle Kinsey Bills whom I am pleased to term the poet laureate of the Kinsey Clan wrote the following of him:

TRIBUTE TO FRANK B. KINSEY

He was with us last Reunion Day—
Cousin Frank, of fam'd Johnstown, P-a.
And, there is not one who doesn't miss
His pleasant countenance of bliss.
Who could his sudden death foretell?—
Not even those who loved him well.
But then, the Master knew what's best,
So He called him to his rest.

Frank led a Christian life, sincere;
Laid treasures up in heav'n's sphere.
He knew it dividends would pay
When once he left his house of clay.
Perhaps God needs him in the sky
To fill some mission there 'on high'.
We think He'll find Frank wanting not;
He has fulfilled his given lot.

And, though we've lost this precious one,
We'll not forget the good he's done.
For he, his life, in service lent,
And did good deeds where'er he went.
Full of humor, he, and clean with jokes,
He could delight his 'loved kinfolks
When he came to mingle with, and praise
His kith and kin on glad Reunion Days.

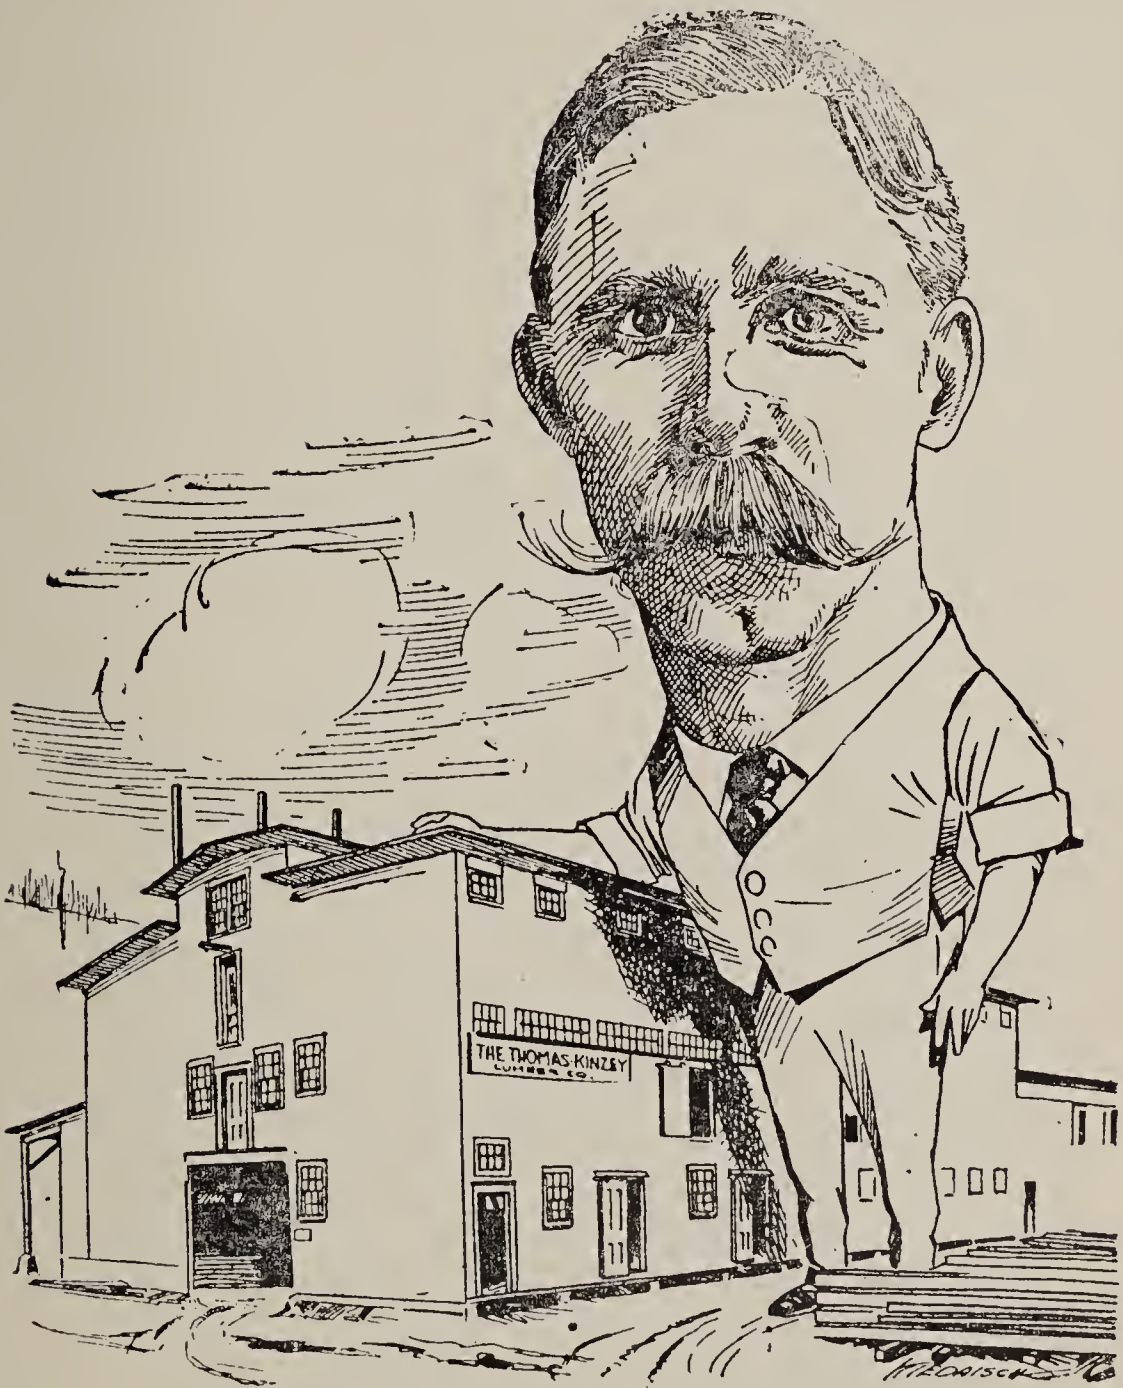

—Myrtle Kinsey Bills

This Reunion (1937) was his retirement from the office of the presidency of the Clan. He knew how and when to make himself dispensable. And, by the way, this picture of Frank B. Kinsey was the last picture of him ever to be taken, according to the statement of his widow, Oct. 30, 1939; taken by the writer, at the 1937 Kinsey Reunion, Waterford, Pa.

It is fitting and appropriate to include here a bit of biography of Cousin Frank as was given in The Johnstown Daily Democrat, March 22, 1916, under the following caption: "Men Who Are Making Johnstown, and the accompanying Cartoon:

MEN WHO ARE MAKING JOHNSTOWN

Frank B. Kinzey is a Bedford county boy who has made good in Johnstown. He was born in Napier township, Bedford county, in 1875. He started out for himself as a farm hand and stuck to the plough for five years. It was in 1896 that he came to Johnstown, being employed by R. R. Thomas soon afterward. In 1904 the Thomas-Kinsey Lumber company was incorporated. Mr. Kinzey being the secretary-treasurer of that concern until 1911. Since that time he has been president of the firm, which at the present time is building a new plant to take care of its growing business. Mr. Kinzey is a director of the Johnstown Trust company. He is also a member of the local Sons of Veterans organization. Mr. Kinzey resides at 405 Pine street, his business address being 548 Horner street.

His success as a business man won him a place among the Who's Who of Business Men who were the Makers of Johnstown, Pa.

More about the Great-Great Grandmother of This Famed Descendant

The descendants of Peter Kinsey and Jane (Jean) Frazer Kinsey are many,—descending from the four sons: Benjamin F., John Boyd, Deywalt, and Peter Kinsey. Frank B. Kinsey is the son of Benjamin F. Kinsey. In the first History we narrated some very interesting facts of the lustrous grandmother, and her son William Frazer who were the great-great grandmother; and the great grandfather of Frank B. Kinsey.

Jane — — Frazer Delapt

Jean Bell-McClain-Frazer-Delapt (later Dunlapt) was a Virginia girl, born in or around Winchester, 1735. In 1754 Jean Bell first married a British army officer named McLain who died shortly after their marriage. Next the attractive young widow McClain met and married John Frazer. Likely this was in the vicinity of Winchester, Va., and in 1754, or 1755 the couple soon thereafter located near Fort Cumberland, in Old Home of John and Jean Frazer, on Oldtown Road, east of Cumberland, Md., where John and Jean located and were building when Jean was captured by the Indians; and to which she escaped after thirteen months with the Indians.

Town, or Oldtown, Md., now on Route 51. Soon after their return from the fatal campaign of General Braddock they purchased a farm on Patterson Run (Creek), Virginia, five or six miles east of Cumberland. (West Va. was a part of Virginia at that time.) And it was at this time (1755) that Jean Bell Frazer was captured by the Indians, when on way

Picture of Marker, erected by the State Roads Commission, identifying the location and house, and bears the following: "Janne Frazer wife of Lieut. John Frazer was captured by the Inndians near this Spot in October 1755 And taken to the Miami River. She escaped after eighteen months and made her way back to her home."

to Cumberland, on horseback and accompanied by a hired man, to purchase some hardware for the house John Frazer was building. The Indians from ambush shot and killed the hired servant, and the horse. Mrs. Frazer fainted, was taken captive and carried away to the Ohio country, Oct. 7, 1755; and escaped about Nov. 30, 1756. This was a period of about thirteen months, according to extracts from letters, to wit: Col. John Armstrong to Governor Denny, Nov. 30, 1756, "We have two men and one woman (the wife of John Frazer) who have made their escape to Fort Cumberland from Fort Duquesne." (3 Pa. Ar. 79). Also, Adam Stephen to Col. Armstrong, Dec. 14, 1756, "By a woman who belongs to John Frazer, and has now, after being a prisoner with Shingas, etc., thirteen months, made her escape from Muskingam." (3 Pa. Ar. 82.)

Just how A. E. Schell, in the Bedford Gazette Sept. 21, 1906, states that "after a number of years of captivity, etc."; and "for several long years Mrs. Jean Frazer was held a captive, etc." (Also years rolled around in weary suspense, etc.") when it was but "thirteen months" we don't quite understand, especially when he had access to William P. Schell's write up as of the Aug. 9, 1898 Bedford Gazette, and as based on 3 Pa. Ar. 79, and 82 records. W. P. Schell's account we hold as the more reliable.

Mrs. Jean Frazer's first child was born shortly after being in captivity, and died shortly,—all taking place in two or three months. The story of Jean's escape is most interesting. Here again we quote from Mr. A. E. Schell: "She made her escape, planning it by strategy and will power and hiding away a meager supply of food for her journey through the wilderness to reach her destination. But to her perplexity a little favorite dog took up her trail and followed her to where she crawled into a hollow log, weary, foot-sore, and exhausted for rest from the long journey through the wilderness. In her extremity and to avoid detection by the pursuit of the Indians on her trail she was obliged to kill the little dog to keep from barking and revealing her hiding place. - - - Despondent, she longed for her friends and civilization; the opportunity came and she fled for her freedom. - - - all hope gone, John Frazer accepted the hand of another woman with a solemn vow between the contracting parties that if the first wife returned his second wife would surrender her claims peacefully and without murmur." After thirteen months, "Jean Frazer returned to her husband and friends. To conciliate his second wife and all parties concerned Mr. Frazer erected a cabin on his property for her, where she lived until the end came the following year."

The story as handed down to Frank B. Kinsey by his ancestors is the same as that given by Mr. A. E. Schell except for a single exception, namely, that Mrs. Jean Frazer hid in a brushpile instead of a hollow log. This exception of course is of no consequence. The facts are the same. Indeed, "a new and original version of Enoch Arden in female form."

On Jean's arrival home, "As John came out with Bell, his wife,

Bell clasped Jean's hand and kissed her cheek.

"I have a home, and this is yours,

This little cabin by the creek

For Bell had patience infinite.
She never felt John was her own.
To leave them now was only right,
And soon the two were quite alone.

John and Jean, in calm content,
Built once again; then raised a brood
In simple faith. These, when they went
Out in the world, they felt were good,
That as they followed, each his bent,
They all could earn their daily food.

Jean often said in later years.
"In troubled times, at home, abroad.
The Lord was with me in my fears.
I felt His presence, staff and rod.
I was upheld when worn with tears.
My troubles brought me nearer God.

And now I'm weary with life's strife.
I've felt the sorrows and the care
That comes to every mother—wife—,
That's given me my silvered hair.
But I have learned in my long life,
There is a God, Who answers prayer."

—From Heroic Pioneers
By Annie Ellis Campdon.

Though Jean Frazer experienced the death of a child; and the death of three husbands; and the death of a son, killed and scalped in an Indian Massacre; and an Indian captivity; and the settling up of an estate to satisfy debts and to educate the children, and which did not pay out; and the trials and fears and hardships of an early and frontier life, one wonders if her evil days did not exceed her good days. But somehow we are inclined to believe that in the fourscore years allotted her by a loving Father that she had more sunshine than shadow, more healthy and well days than sick ones, more laughter than weeping, and that truly in her long life, there was a God who answered prayer.

The writer has in his possession the original papers, one dated in 1778, in which Jean Delapt and husband Richard Delapt petition the Court to sell lands in order to satisfy debts and educate the children. This petition bears the signature of Richard Delapt, and Jean Delapt in their own handwriting. John Frazer owned around some four thousand or more acres. Some tracts of land were not sold because there were no bidders for them.

A second original paper, dated May 19, 1779, recorded in the Orphans Court, Bedford, and again bears the signature of the Delapts in their own handwriting. (See the cut of their signatures herewith). These Original papers are about as old as the Declaration of Independence. They will find their repose in the Kinsey Museum.

- She and husband accompanied Gen. Braddock in his ill-fated campaign.
- Jean and husband bought farm on Patterson Run, Va., four or five miles east of Fort Cumberland.
- Captured by the Indians, carried away to the Ohio country, on Oct. 7th. (First child born in captivity.)
- 1756—Escapes and returns to freedom, to Patterson Run, Nov. 30, 1756.
- Is reunited to husband who finally despaired of any return and marries again. (Second marriage annuled as per understanding, and with provision.)
- 1758—Two children: Margaret and James, were born before Aug. 1758.

—Relocated in Raystown (Bedford), Pa.

1759—Son William Frazer, third child (living) born—reputed to be the first white child born in Bedford County.

—Home - maker and Inn Keeper's wife.

1773—Is widdowed, with eight children.

1774—Administratrix of husband's estate, together with Gen. Arthur StClair of Ligonier.

1775—Married Richard Delapt, Capt. of Militia Bedford Co. (14 Pa. A. —2 Series 644). Residing in Bedford.

1776—Daughter Agnes born, Mar. 9th.

1781—Widdowed the third time,—husband and son Benjamin killed and scalped in the Indian Massacre in the Frankstown area (now in Blair Co.)

1790—Jean and daughter Agnes purchase lot No. 6 on southeast corner of public square in Bedford.

1796—Applies for a pension—husband killed at Frankstown, 1781.

1815—Died on the Williams farm (son-in-law's) near Schellsburg, Bedford Co., Pa., Apr. 14, 1815. Eighty years of age. Interred in Bedford Cemetery.

*So we observe that her married years consisted of about three months; her second, eighteen years to John Frazer (1755-1773), and her third marriage six years, to Richard Delapt (1775-1781), or a total of 23 years (not counting the 13 months in Indian captivity.) Twenty-three years of married life is short; and a widow the third time at 46 years of age is early in life, and to be a widow finally until 80 years or 34 years is quite a long time.

William Frazer, First White Male Child Born In Bedford Co.

William Frazer, born to John and Jean Frazer, 1759, in Bedford (Raystown), in their cabin located where the Graystone Hotel stands, and reputed to be the first white child to be born in Bedford Co. He is the great grandfather of Frank B. Kinsey, on his grantmother's side, Jane Frazer Kinsey, wife of Peter Kinsey (1811-1888) (It was in this same year, 1759, that Gen. Stanwix changed the name of Raystown to Fort Bedford in honor of the Duke of Bedford of Bedfordshire, England.)

He married Jane Lafferty, and the following children were born to them: John Frazer; James Frazer; William Frazer; Montgomery Frazer; Thomas Frazer; Benjamin J. Frazer; Margaret Frazer; Jane Frazer; and Catherine Frazer.

William Frazer seems first to have located on a tract of land in Bedford township; and later, in Napier township; and lastly, in Harrison township, along the northern slope of Dry Ridge, on a farm later known as the "Herline" property. He became resident in Napier township by taking up land adjacent to the south side of Jacob Kinsey Improvements, and known as the William Frazer Improvements—settled about 1820. The Draft Book, Land Office, Dept. Internal Affairs, Harrisburg, Pa. shows these facts. (A copy of the Jacob Kinsey Improvements and adjacent tracts is shown on page 31 of the first Kinsey History.

Mr. Frazer was at this time (1820) sixty-one years old. The remaining twenty-four years of his life were spent on this farm, and on the "Herline" property. Relocating to the "Herline" property was likely due to the fact that he wished to be near his half-sister, Agnes Delapt Williams, and his mother, Jean Delapt who was then living with her daughter. The "Herline" property was adjacent, or nearly so, to the John Williams property. (If the writer is not mistaken the Williams property is now, 1955, occupied by "Turner Bros. Turkey Farm" at Shawnee.)

Doubtless it was when William Frazer and his family became neighbors of Jacob Kinsey that Peter Kinsey, his son, became interested in Miss Jane (Jean) Frazer, and consequently teamed up for life, about 1829. Their first child, Benjamin F. Kinsey, was born Nov. 7, 1830; and is the father of Frank B. Kinsey.

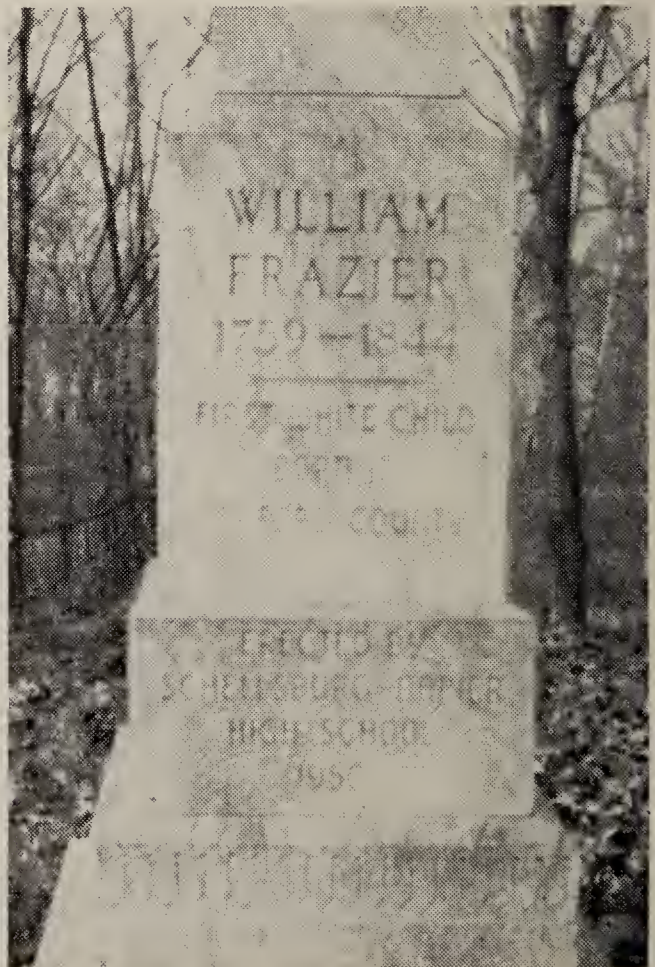

A study of William Frazer's features indicates that he was a rugged and sturdy man, having a physique with great strength and endurance, still active to the end of his life. In 1843, then eighty-four years old, he frequently walked from his home to Bedford and back, a distance of eighteen miles.

Mr. Frazer came to the end of his earthly pilgrimage in 1844, at the age of eighty-five years. This was four years before his half-sister Agnes passed away. His interment and burial grounds are described under the next heading.

WILLIAM FRAZER'S MEMORIAL MARKER

During Pennsylvania Week, Oct. 18, 1950, Bedford County redeemed itself from a neglected honor due the burial place of the first white male child to be born in Bedford County, namely, the resting place of the remains of William Frazer, 1759-1844, one hundred six years after his decease.

The Faculty and the Students of the Schellsburg-Napier High School took it upon themselves to erect a Memorial-Marker to its native son. Though belated, it was to the credit of the school, and to the joy of all citizens that the project was brought to fruition; and that a new Bedford County Shrine was born. The Marker is located about three miles south of Schelleburg, along Route 31, about a short mile off and west of Route 96. The dedication ceremonies were appropriately a part of "Pennsylvania Week."

Memorial Marker and detail, erected on the grave of William Frazer. The wording on the monument reads: "William Frazer, 1759 - 1844. Erected by Schellsburg - Napier High School 1950."

The writer was invited to participate in the dedication and unveiling ceremonies because of his historical accounts of the strain of Kinseys headed by Jean Frazer Kinsey who was a daughter of William Frazer, and the wife of Peter Kinsey (1811-1888). The writer delivered a few dedicatory remarks immediately following the Address for the occasion, and supplementing the history of William Frazer, spoke extemporaneously as follows: "A memorial is a teaching technique, to arouse curiosity, and to occasion questions on the part of youngsters. This fact is revealed in the Scripture as, "What mean ye by these stones?" It then became the duty of parents and teachers to tell the story of the worthy incident not to be forgotten. Hence, a memorial is: some thing to keep some other thing or person from being forgotten. Christ, our Savior, used the same teaching technique when He used the Bread and the Cup in instituting the Eucharist. His sufferings and death must not be forgotten. The Bread and the Cup are Memorials. Again, the Lincoln Highway is a memorial, and thereby Lincoln is kept in memory by this another memorial to him.

This Memorial-Marker to William Frazer becomes a County Shrine, a new Shrine for Bedford County; and it will become us to make our pilgrimages here from time to time as a matter of respect and honor to a native countian of pioneer and frontier life. Hence, in recognition of this newly begotten shrine; and in confession of fault of a long neglected act; and in recognition of the hardships of a pioneer life; and in recognition of the contrasted, present blessings of a tranquil life and liberties we now enjoy, we do, here and now, unveil and dedicate this Memorial-Marker on the grave, and to the memory of William Frazer, reputed and claimed to be the first white, male child to be born in Bedford County."

The shielding cover was then removed by Miss Margaret Frazer of Cumberland, Md., and the oldest living descendant of the pioneer settler.

tree. The stone still protruded about four inches above the ground.

The names and the location of the cemetery and graves of the above were verified by Mrs. Martin Dull nee Herline. Mrs. Dull whose age was past eighty-nine years was born and raised on the farm commonly known as the Herline farm containing the cemetery.

We were informed by Mrs. Espy Potts of Schellsburg, Pa., who was a daughter of Mrs. Dull, and who said, "I played in the cemetery many a time.")

In conclusion, doubtless, it will be generally agreed that the story of Jean Bell McClain-Frazer-Delapt, and her son, William Frazer and his descendants is most interesting. Especially to the blood descendants. (This is not a story of all of the lustrous Jean's descendants.) Others as Ruby Frazier Frey's "Red Morning"; and Hervey Allen's "Bedford Village" "The Forest And The Fort Toward the Morning" are more general and less circumscribed, and more on the fictitious and novel order. The writer has endeavored to confine himself to historical facts in the biographies as of the above.

CHAPTER IX.

Kinsey Challenges

The Museum

A Museum to preserve the Antiques and Heirlooms of the Kinseys and their ancestors in particular was set forth as a worthy and challenging project in our first Kinsey History. It has struck fire and taken root in the Descendants. As yet not materialized, but seems "happy on the way." There are some rather difficult problems connected with such a project, such as location, administration, financing, housing, communal, etc. Problems which seemed mountainous at first, but by now seem to be in the process of leveling off, and as possible. A loyal and devoted community spirit and an ancestral pride can do wonders. The educational institution that a Museum is, and the spirit it engenders also is a potent factor in its success. It is subjective now, but it can become objective, the ideal can become real, depending on the fine ancestral stuff we are made of; and the interest we have in leaving a worthwhile legacy to our posterity.

The writer at the present time is persuaded that A Museum should be a community affair, a Museum Tree with ancestral roots. No one at any time or age lived unto himself, and we don't die unto ourselves, says the Bible. Hence the family, the villages and cities, nations. Participation is a law of interest. What we take part in with interest we think is fine. Such a philosophy of life makes great undertakings come to pass. Not only do we think that the Museum should be a community affair; but also think that the town of Schellsburg would be the logical, and suitable location for the Museum, since it is not only the village of the Kinseys, but also the vicinity of so many other old line families of pioneer days and frontier life, to wit: Schells, Colvins, Williams, Mowrys, Hille-gases, Keyzers, Culps, Rocks, Bowers, Whitmores, Burns, Taylors, Wolfs, VanOrmers, Egolfs, Horns, etc., etc., etc., etc.

We have knowledge of the fact that most of the posterity of these remarkable old line families have heirlooms and antiques in their possession. Why let them be lost or destroyed; and worse yet, be collected by antique dealers and carted away from the community, to other Museums, or to antique marts? There are many of us today, are wondering what we shall do with our antiques. A community Museum we think is the answer to that problem.

A Community Museum should be incorporated as a Non-Profit Corporation, with a Board of Trustees, and other officials, etc., administered and governed by a set of By-Laws in keeping with the Charter of the Commonwealth. In this day of Social Security custodian and other caretakers should not be a financial problem. Donations and bequests should build up an endowment. Interest and loyalty should yield donated labors. IT CAN BE DONE!

A roster of Charter Members should be appealing. Antiques as of family collections, or otherwise, should be donated, or loaned, or sold to the Museum. For the sake of breadth and richness antiques from whatever source should be added to the collection. It would be an added attraction to Schellsburg and vicinity as well as the Lake. Tourists would be interested. It would be conducive to community and village growth. The scenery of this part of the country is charming. It is on a trunkline highway. Schellsburg has a glorious and rich historic past, but we haven't talked too much about it. Let us awaken and do something about it. A museum project is one handle by which we can take hold of to do it.

Antiques are not "junk," any more than a page of history is junk. An object is history as well as "words and sentences." Our ancestors were no junk-people. We resent the word "junk" as applied to antiques and heirlooms.

A famous Bible character anointed the body of Jesus. It was an act of pre-mortem appreciation. Jesus said, "the thing this woman did" shall be her world-wide memorial. What will we be remembered for when once we are dead and gone? Most of us would like to be remembered; but most of us will soon be forgotten. A museum collection bearing your name or family name may be and can be your memorial, the thing by which you will be remembered, this as well as a book or an invention.

We have the objects; the location is good; the time is ripe and opportune; the potential is good; why not?

The Loyalty Pledge

It was about the 1949 Reunion when the Organization adopted a Loyalty Pledge for the purpose of creating a greater interest and devotion among the kin to the Organization. No one should hesitate to make such a commitment. The following was submitted, and adopted by the Organization:

THE JACOB KINTZY (KINSEY) CORPORATION LOYALTY PLEDGE

I hereby pledge to the best of my ability so to live and labor as to perpetuate the noble ideals of my ancestry; to carry out the objectives of the Kinsey Corporation; to emulate the marked manhood and womanhood of our forbears; to attend the Annual Reunions when possible; to discharge duties, carry out responsibilities, support financially and to co-operate with all, for honor, nobleness, and virtue, I do so pledge.

THE CANES

The Honorary Cane

The Honorary Cane was made by Rev. Wm. Kinsey in 1953. It was procured by him from a fencerow in Jefferson County, Tenn., four miles from Dandridge, the county seat, while serving in a pinch-hitting pastorate in the Church of the Brethren.

It is of sassafras wood, formed in its spiral or corkscrew shape by some honey suckle vines growing around it. When it became thoroughly seasoned, the vines and bark were removed, smoothed, and varnished.

It was presented to the Kinsey Organization, Reunion of Aug. 7, 1954 by Rev. Kinsey as an "honorary cane." The purpose and use of "The Honorary Cane" was and is: On each Annual Reunion occasion it shall be presented, for the day, to the oldest Kinsey, man or woman, present, not a visitor. The recipient shall use it, display it, make it the subject of conversation, etc.

Symbolically, it is to be recognized as the badge of Seniority, a badge of honor, suggesting respect and esteem for the aged, especially the senescent group of the Clan. Being straight it symbolizes uprightness of character; the spiral form (not crooked) symbolizes mounting up, climbing to success and honor, it suggests beauty and uniqueness.

In the interim, from year to year, or such time or times as may call for its use, the custodian of the Honorary Cane shall be the President of the Corporation, the official custodian.

The Giant Or Oversize Cane

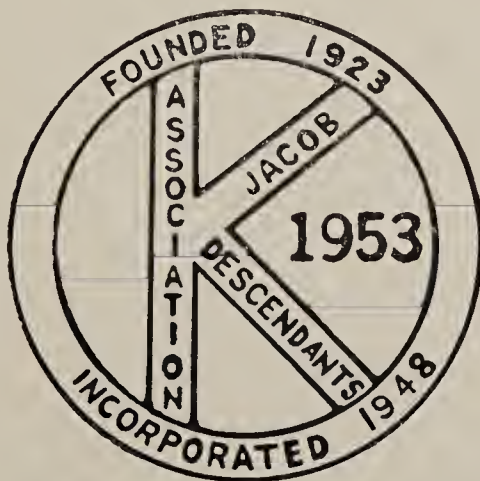

The Giant Cane is unique because of its size, and also because of the freak-like growth. Thus it is entitled to a place in the Kinsey Museum. Thoughtlessly the wood was not identified until too late. It may have been a mulberry, but this is only a guess.

The cane was made by Rev. Wm. Kinsey who procured it along the towpath of the historic Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, a bit east of Brunswick, Frederick County, Md., while assisting in a surveying job on a tract of land formerly surveyed by George Washington, and through which the old canal ran.

It may provoke and stimulate thought; but beyond that, there may be a giant Kinsey born some day for whom the cane would not be a misfit or a joke. Therefore the cane could be loaned him by the Museum, or he be exhibited, on occasion, in the Museum with the Cane as an amusement stunt.

The Corporation Seal

To make the work, activities, and purposes all the more perfect and authoritative, the Organization in business session of 1953 adopted a Corporation Seal. Seal as follows:

A seal authenticates, confirms, and ratifies. Hence, legal papers can be authenticated; identified, confirmed; etc.

Preservation of Messages and Voices

Would it not be most remarkable today to hear the voice of Lincoln, or Washington, Shakespeare; or more remarkable still, to hear the voice of Paul, or Moses, or Abraham. Most remarkable indeed it would be. The science of today makes that preservation possible by recording the sounds of the human voice on plastic records. Would it not be interesting to hear the voices of some of our ancestors? Would we not be conferring a great favor upon some of our descendents two or three hundred or more years from now by recording and preserving some of the Kinsey voices,—in conversation, or brief remarks, or song, for them? They could be kept in the Archives of the Museum. The above is a suggestion, and those interested could have small records of their own voices, or the voices of their near and noble or honored kin. The writer thinks that the idea is unique, and timely, and gears in with the scientific progress of the age.

Tribute Paid To Jacob Kinsey And Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey

The annual Reunion of the Jacob Kinsey Descendants Corporation assembled, Aug. 4, 1951, at Shawnee State Park, Schellsburg, Pa., for the festal day. A singular and unique feature of the day was to pay a fitting tribute to Jacob Kintzy (Kinsey as Anglicised) and Elizabeth Kemp Kinsey, our immigrant ancestors. The pioneer couple were both born in the same year (1769), and they both died in the same year (1851), being 81 years old.

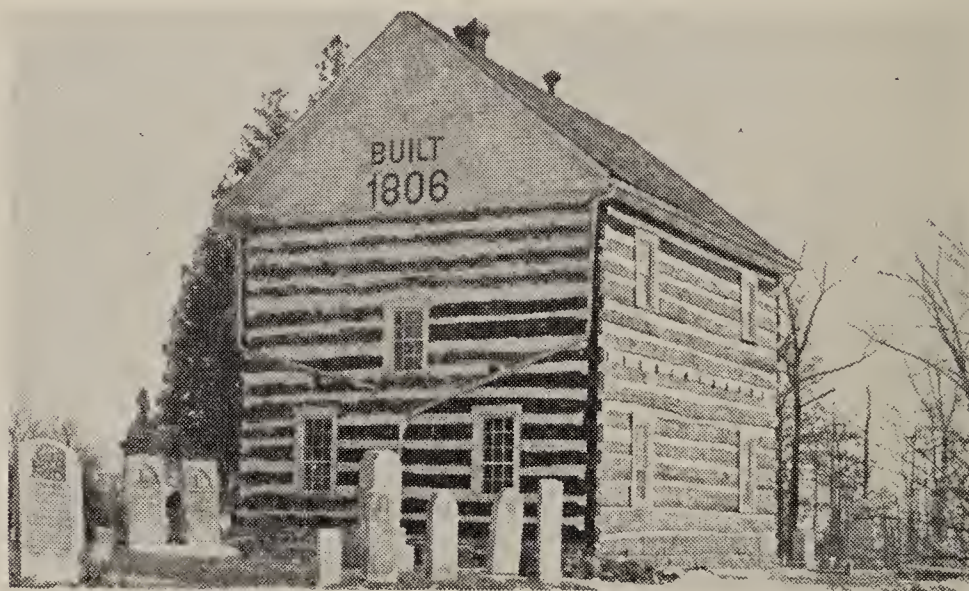

One hundred years after their decease, 1951, the descendants gathered, on their Reunion Day, by the graveside to honor their memory by placing a wreath on the grave site. Alfred C. Kinsey, president of the Kinsey Corporation Inc., placed the Wreath. The wreath was one such as might have been used for an elderly person a century earlier. "It consisted of a garland of beautifully arranged artificial laurel leaves, simply adorned with an orchid bow, and streamer inscribed: Kinsey Clan 1851-1951."

After brief remarks by the writer relative to the venture of migrating to a new world; the struggles of a pioneer and frontier life; hardships and inconveniences; faith and courage and hopes; strangers in a strange and sparsely settled land; the president placed the symbol of tribute on the graves, done about 5:30 p.m.

Alfred C. Kinsey places Wreath on grave of ancestor,
Right, foreground, Rev. Wm. Kinsey

The graves of Jacob Kinsey and wife are about one hundred feet south of the old historic church, and slightly east. This location was at that time in front of the church house, the door of entrance to the church faced south. The picture shows the rear of the building and which faced front, that is, toward the Lincoln highway as surveyed by Michael Reed in 1815, and now still located further to the north, by-passing a new addition to the cemetery.

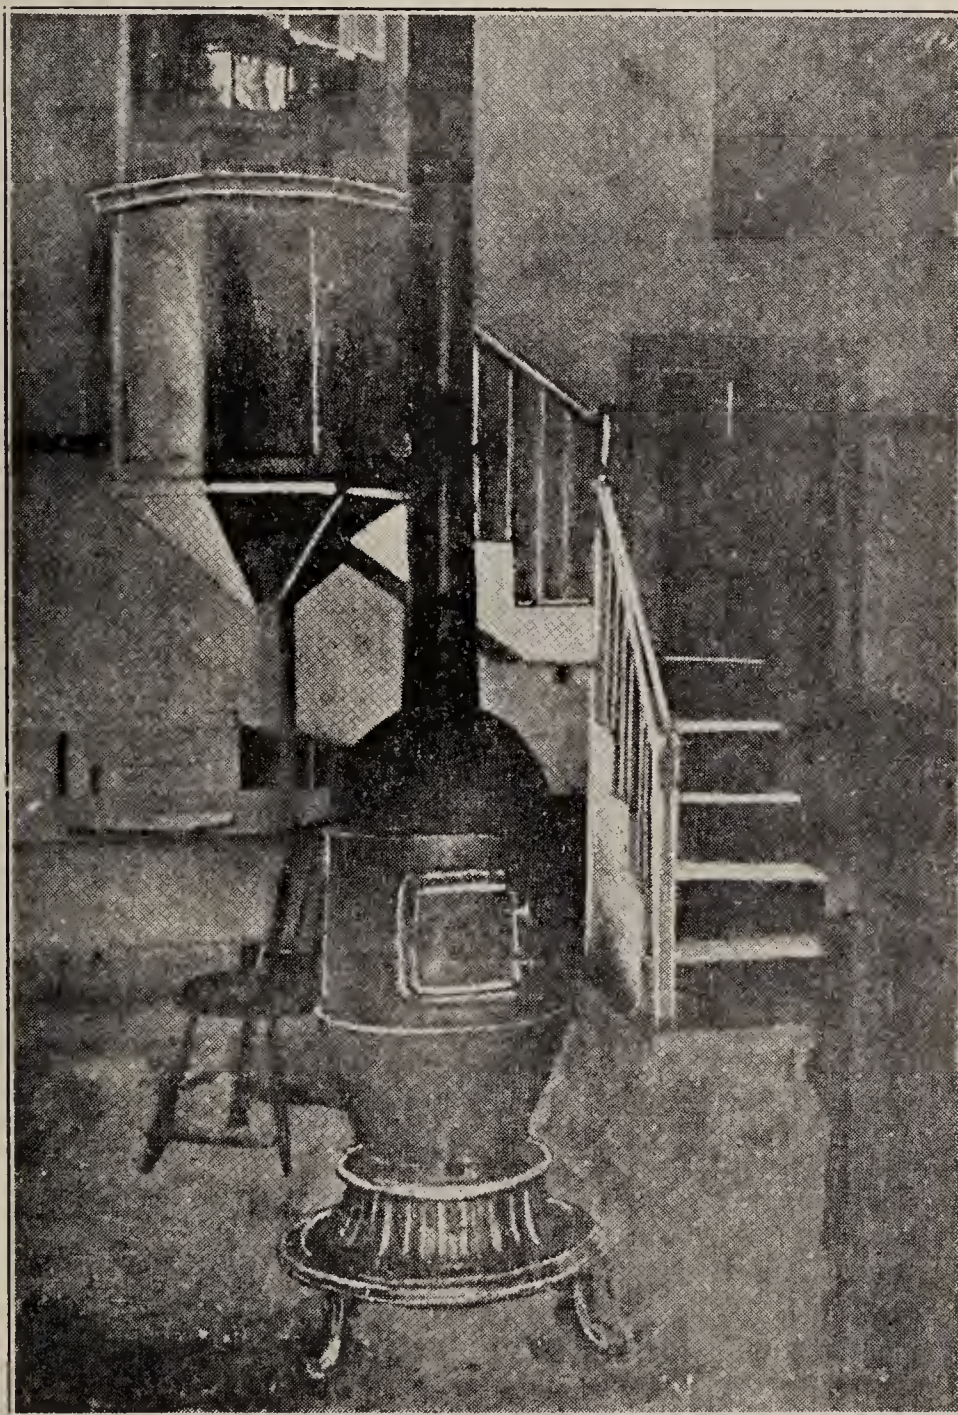

Old Church in Union Cemetery, Schellsburg, Pa.
Supposed to be the oldest Church in Bedford County;
Built in 1806, of logs, and now restored to its original state.

The following is quoted from William P. Schell's account of the History of Schellsburg as given in the first Kinsey History: "Whereas it has been agreed by the inhabitants of Bedford and St. Clair townships, that a meeting house (church) is necessary to be builded, by subscriptions of said inhabitants, the said house to be 25 x 30 feet, two stories with shingle roof—the subscriptions to be paid to John Schell, Tobias Hammer, George Rock, and John Mowry—The building is to be free to no other denominations than for the Calvinists and Lutherans; and traveling preachers shall have the liberty to preach by application to the elders of the congregation."

In this old church the writer's father attended catechetical classes; and has the German catechism booklet used. At that time there was only the ground floor. In this church many of the older Kinseys worshipped; and in the Cemetery many were buried, and still so today; and where the writer plans to be interred.

See the first History, Chapter X, for a fuller account of the history of the Church, especially the achitecture of the interior. It is antique indeed, and very interesting.

The Centennial celebration in 1906 as reported in the Gazette of that year, issue June 29, was an elaborate affair. In our opinion the citizens of the community did it justice, and rightly so. We do not make enough over church and religious affairs and events. Now then, 1956 is the Sesqui-centennial year. It is hoped that we shall be sufficiently interested and enterprising enough to celebrate, that at the end of the next fifty years, our posterity will rise up and bless and praise us. Primarily, however, we should celebrate adequately as an historical act, and in honor of a religious and Christian ancestry.

CHAPTER X

Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy And His Descendants

Introductory Remarks

The ancestry, and children will be given first; the historical account, or records for each Kinsey, second.

There are two numbers appearing before the names of the children. The first number indicates the generation; as for example: First Generation; Second Generation, etc. And the number in parentheses means the number of children in any particular family.

In taking up any Kinsey and his immediate descendants, his Ancestry will be given first, in small capital letters, and with a wider margin from the left of the page than that for his Children. To illustrate the numbers: Take Henry Kinsey, for example, who comes in the third, "3," generation, his ancestors will run, 2, 1; and his children (1), (2), (3), etc.

This arrangements is to simplify the place and location of the ancestors, and the descendants, especially when there are several Kinseys by the same name.

Different families of the same generation, when the ancestor changes, are separated by a line.

Some of the biographical sketches are incomplete, and briefer than they should be. This is because of the indifference on the part of some in furnishing the data as requested.

Descendants such as Miller, Smith, Adams, etc., families and children as of other names are given for the first family name removed.

1. JACOB KINSEY, July 12, 1769—June 26, 1851.

- 2 (1) Jacob Kinsey, April 9, 1795—March 3, 1818.
- 2 (2) John Kinsey, —March 10, 1818.
- 2 (3) Henry Kinsey, June 26, 1804—Oct. 11, 1876.
- 2 (4) William Kinsey, Oct. 6, 1808—Aug. 7, 1879.
- 2 (5) Peter Kinsey, Feb. 16, 1811—Feb. 7, 1888.
- 2 (6) Dewalt Kinsey, Dec. 22, 1814—June 26, 1897.
- 2 (7) Benjamin Kinsey, Oct. 24, 1817—April 21, 1877.

Jacob Kinsey, 1769—1851, married Elizabeth Kemp (1769—1851). In the year 1795, March 20, according to the testimony of James Burns, they began their homestead at the foot of the Alleghany mountains, on a 439 acres, 87 perches tract of land.

Jacob Kinsey and his wife were both born in Germany. For a fuller account of their lives, see Chapter III of volume I.

Mr. Kinsey was a farmer, wheelright, and a stone mason. To Jacob Kinsey and his wife were born the children as given above.

(Remark: We notice in the "Will" of Jacob Kinsey (Kintzy) that he refers to the "heirs of my son George Kinsey." See Chapter VI of volume I for further remarks.)

SECOND GENERATION

2. JACOB KINSEY, April 9, 1795—March 3, 1818.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

Never married. Died of small-pox, 1818. Buried in the Union Cemetery, west of Schellsburg, Bedford Co., Pa.

2. JOHN KINSEY, —1818.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

According to my father's statement, he married a Miss Weisel. Died when married about four weeks. No children.

These two sons died of the small-pox, in the epidemic of 1818. This scourge had a high death-rate. The two brothers died a week apart, and were buried in one grave. See Chapter VIII of volume I for a fuller account of the "Small-pox Epidemic."

2. HENRY KINSEY, June 26, 1804—Oct. 11, 1876.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

3 (1) Henry Kinsey, Dec. 29, 1832—Feb. 19, 1896.

3 (2) Joseph F. Kinsey, Dec. 21, 1840—April 24, 1915.

3 (3) William M. Kinsey, May 3, 1843—July 3, 1890.

3 (4) Jacob Kinsey, June 4, 1844—July 12, 1911.

3 (5) Caroline Kinsey, Aug. 14, 1845—July 31, 1928.

3 (6) Valentine Kinsey, Feb. 14, 1848—*

3 (7) Albert Echart Kinsey, July 18, 1849—Feb. 23, 1931.

3 (8) Margaret Kinsey, Sept. 13, 1852—Nov. 24, 1930.

3 (9) Susan Kinsey, June 26, 1855—Oct. 29, 1888.

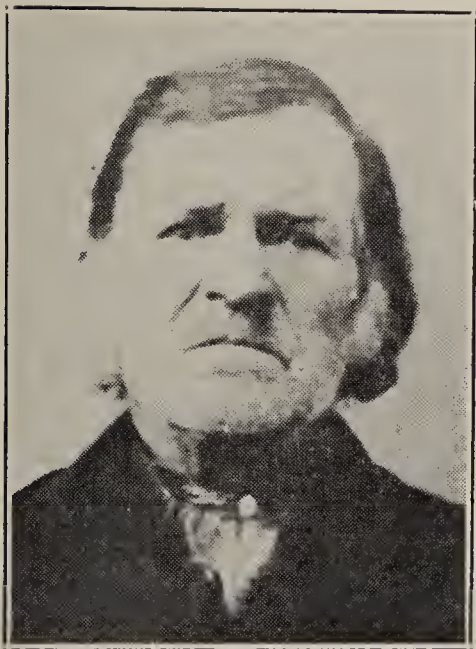

3 (10) Hester Kinsey, Oct. 29, 1856—April 9, 1872.

3 (11) Elmira Kinsey, Oct. 11, 1860—Sept. 14, 1920.

3 (12) Ealy Kinsey,*

*On Nov. 16, 1945 Lee Zimmers and the writer went to the Henry Kinzey homestead and removed the tombstones (Grave markers — native field stones) to the Schellsburg Cemetery, from the little family plot below the garden, placing them on Henry Kinzey's grave-lot. Valentine Kinzey's is marked "V + K."; and Ealy Kinzey's is marked "E + K." The stones were taken to the Cemetery Nov. 17, 1945.

Henry Kinsey, 1804—1876, married Sophia Hardman, Aug. 10, 1839. Went to housekeeping on seventy-five acres of the original Improvement. All of his children, except the first, were born on this homestead. He was a farmer, wheelright, and a stone mason.

HENRY KINSEY

SOPHIA HARDMAN KINSEY

According to the Family Record in a "Life of Christ," owned by him and recorded in his own hand writing, he was born in the year 1804. On his tomb stone, however, an error is shown.

Valentine and Ealy were buried on the homestead.

A few of the dates of the births of some of the children may be a bit incorrect, since the age of the paper bearing the record, and the blurring of the ink, makes some of the dates uncertain.

Henry Kinsey died October 11, 1876. His wife, Sophia Hardman Kinsey, died March 1 1900. Children listed above.

The original log house as built by Henry Kinsey, and added to later.

The accompanying picture of the log-house is a picture of the house which Henry Kinsey built on his share of the original homestead. In this house all his children were born, that is, the writer's father and all of his uncles and aunts. The house as seen in the cut or picture is not the original exactly. The end of the house to the left—from the upright log which runs right by the door was an after addition. After the new addition was built to the house, grandfather moved his wheelright equipment, or shop, into the downstairs room of his new addition. The shop and the increasing number of children demanded larger quarters.

This house with its large chimney is a type of the houses which were common in the community. The barns were built of logs also, something after the accompanying picture.

The original barn as built by Henry Kinsey. The barn is of log frame covered with weatherboarding. The barn is still standing, and the only one of the original buildings. (Photo by the author.)

It was upon the roof of the above house where the fox chased the turkey gobbler, and from a rear window, was shot. (See Chapter XI, for the account, First History.)

We are indebted to our cousin, George Kinsey Smith, for the picture of the old Henry Kinsey home. In fact, he and his camera, in his young days, has made possible a number of pictures for this history. The contribution is greatly appreciated.

2. WILLIAM KINSEY, October 6, 1808—August 7, 1879.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

3 (1) Jacob Henry Kinsey, June 30, 1832—Dec. 9, 1879.

3 (2) William Scott Kinsey, Sept. 27, 1834—March 20, 1888.

3 (3) Dewalt Kinsey, Oct. 5, 1836—Aug. 12, 1838.

William Kinsey, 1808—1879, married Margaret Gott. He was willed the tract of land adjoining the Burns' property. When his brother Benjamin migrated west, in 1854, he bought out his brother. Hence what was willed to William was never built upon.

There is no picture of him known to be in existence.

William died August 7, 1879. He was in his seventy-first year. His wife, Margaret, died March 27, 1868. She was in her seventy-fifth year. Both are interred in the Schellsburg cemetery.

The author was named after this great uncle.

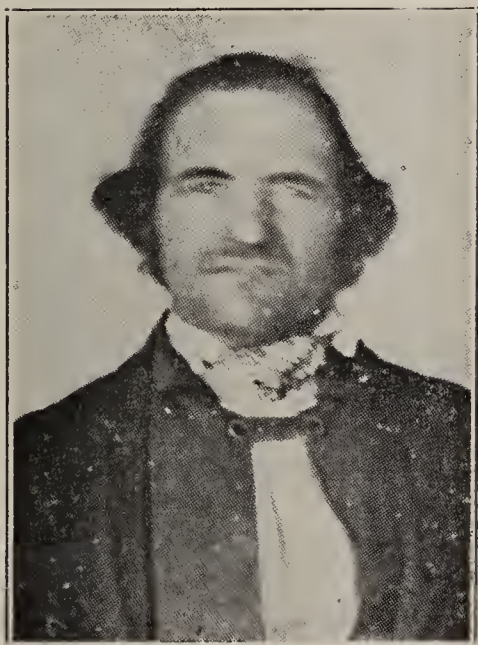

He was a tanner and a farmer. William Kinsey worked as a tanner in the Clark Tannery in Schellsburg for twenty-seven years. Later he was employed in the Burns' Tannery. He was tanning at the time he bought his brother Benjamin's farm. Children as above.

2. PETER KINSEY, Feb. 16, 1811—Feb. 7, 1888.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

- 3 (1) Benjamin Franklin Kinsey, Nov. 7, 1830—Sept. 23, 1912.
- 3 (2) William H. Kinsey, March 17, 1833—Jan. 8, 1838.
- 3 (3) Martin Kinsey, March 19, 1835—Dec. 24, 1837.
- 3 (4) John Boyd Kinsey, Nov. 26, 1839—Oct. 6, 1916.
- 3 (5) Dewalt Kinsey, April 6, 1840—Jan. 1, 1914.
- 3 (6) Emanuel Kinsey, Feb. 9, 1841—Dec. 29, 1854.
- 3 (7) Peter P. Kinsey, , 1842—Nov. 14, 1922.
- 3 (8) Ellen Kinsey, April 17, 1844—Sept. 9, 1845.
- 3 (9) George Kinsey, Oct. 30, 1846—Sept. 16, 1851.
- 3 (10) Hiram Kinsey, Feb. 17, 1849—Jan. 9, 1868.

Peter Kinsey, 1811—1888, married Jane Frazer. Jane Frazer was a daughter of William Frazer who is claimed to be the first white child to be born in Bedford Co., Pa. (See Histories on Bedford County; also Napier Township, in State Library in Harrisburg and elsewhere; also see Chapter VIII.

PETER KINSEY

He was willed the tract of land to the west of the original homestead, adjacent to the mountain.

He learned the wheelwright trade. In his last days he lived in the large house by the "pike," now the Lincoln Highway, on the Major Burns' property. He kept a little store and operated a hotel at the Burns Mill, five miles west of Schellsburg, (See map of Bedford Co., published 1861, inhabitants of Schellsburg); and was postmaster. The writer, as a boy, walked about five or six miles, once a week, to his office for the mail. My faint recollection of him was that he resembled his brother Henry, my grandfather.

Peter Kinsey and four of his sons served in the Civil War. The father and Peter, Jr., in Company K., Fifty-fifth Regiment,

P. V. I., under Col. Richard White and Captain Joseph Filler, the latter of Bedford Co.

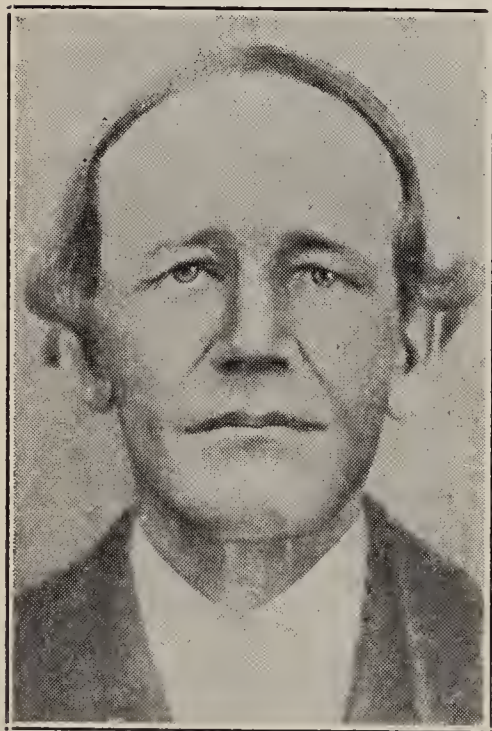

Peter Kinsey died while living at the Burns Mill property, on February 7, 1888. His wife Jane died on January 11, 1888. They were buried in the Schellsburg Cemetery, adjacent to the original Kinsey plot, just south of the old church.

2. DEWALT KINSEY, Dec. 22, 1814—June 26, 1897.

- 3 (5) Amos F. Kinsey, Aug. 2, 1856—Oct. 1, 1904.
- 3 (6) Catherine Kinsey, July 14, 1862—Aug. 4, 1928.

Dewalt Kinsey, 1814—1897, married Sarah Wertz. He was willed the original homestead, containing one hundred and twelve acres.

DEWALT KINSEY
(As he appeared in his later years.)

Three years after the death of his father, he sold the farm to Henry Sigler for $1,000, in the year of 1854, (Henry Sigler sold this farm later to Stephen McCreary for $1,050, February 28, 1857) and migrated with his brother Benjamin to Iowa. He located four miles west of the town of Tipton, Cedar Co., Iowa. He bought eighty acres of land, and lived here twenty-six years. Then in 1881 he moved to Douglas, Butler Co., Kansas, where his son John had moved in the fall of 1878.

Besides farming, he was a cooper by trade. He butchered some. He was road supervisor for many years while living in Iowa. He was quite a grafter of fruit.

In politics, he was a Democrat, as was his brothers. But when Lincoln ran for president, his sympathies were with Lincoln on the slave question, and so voted Republican. This was very offensive to his brother Henry who said that he would sooner have heard that he (Dewalt) was dead than to have heard that he turned Republican. With this event the two brothers discontinued their correspondence (Also told the writer by Margaret Kinsey Adams of Johnstown, Pa., and Mrs. Anthony Kinsey of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.) It was, however, to the credit of Dewalt Kinsey to put moral principles before partisanism; and in this he set the rest of us an example.

As a churchman, Dewalt superintended Sunday School in the old Burns' School House. What his faith was before going to Kansas, I do not know, but while he lived in Kansas, he was a member of the United Brethren Church, and died in that faith. "Dewalt Kinsey was one of the best Christian men I ever knew." —Mrs. Motie Little, Douglas, Kansas (1930). Many of his letters, now in possession of the writer, manifest quite a religious tone.

At different times he manifested a desire to return to his native state, Pennsylvania.

He died on June 26, 1897, and is buried in the cemetery, a half mile from Douglas, Kansas.

2. BENJAMIN E. KINZEY, Oct. 24, 1817—April 21, 1877.

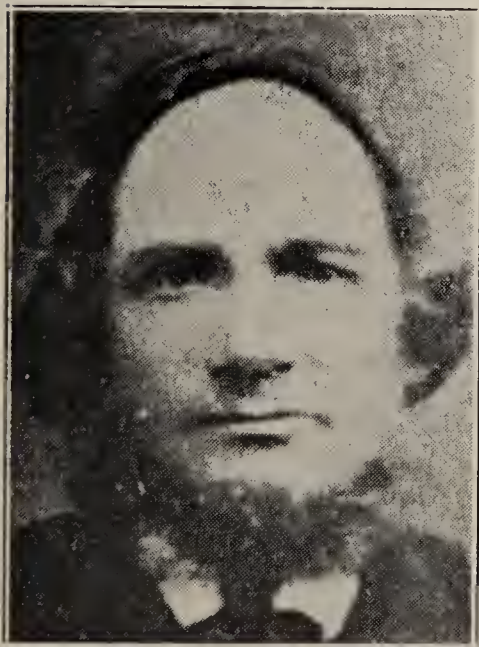

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

- 3 (1) Elizabeth Kinsey, 1840 (?)—Aug., 1879.
- 3 (2) William M. Kinsey, Sept. 30, 1842—Jan. 13, 1843.
- 3 (3) Anthony Kinsey, Jan. 17, 1845—Jan. 15, 1909.
- 3 (4) Cyrus E. Kinsey, July 30, 1847—April 5, 1853.
- 3 (5) George W. Kinsey, Feb. 10, 1850—(living, 1932).
- 3 (6) Emma M. Kinsey, April 13, 1855—March 21, 1861.

Benjamin Kinsey, 1817—1877, was married three times; first to Sarah Heitchew. There were no children to this union. Second, he was married to Anna Maria Fisher (1818—1853) of Schellsburg, Pa. To this union there were five children, as given above. Third, he was married to Sarah Barker of Iowa. One child, Emma M., was born to this union, April 13, 1855, died March 21, 1861, record as of grave marker, Rogers Grove Cemetery (near Cedar Rapids, Iowa). Information furnished by Louis Kinzey, son of Benjamin Kinzey, October 4, 1939.

These marriages are confirmed by Benjamin's son, George W., of Kingsley, Iowa (1931).

Benjamin migrated to Iowa with his brother Dewalt, 1854. He located five miles south of Cedar Rapids for a short time, on the hill about a fourth mile off the road, now known as "U. S. 161" paved road, to the east. Then he bought forty acres of land lying on the west side of Road 161, five miles south of Cedar Rapids. This was adjacent to where he first located. There are no buildings remaining on this tract of land at present. This forty-acre tract of land adjoins and is a part of the Anthony Kinsey farm of two hundred and twenty acres of land which is still owned by Mrs. Anthony Kinsey (1932). It perhaps should be said in this connection,

BENJAMIN E. KINSEY
As he appeared in his later years.

that Anthony Kinsey, son of Benjamin, at first procured forty acres of land of the present tract, trading a team of horses for the land. The land was valued at one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre. So with a fifty dollar team he bought forty acres of fine Iowa land. Then, being without a team of horses, having some young steers, he proceeded to break-in an Ox-team. With such a beginning, Anthony started on the road to a financial success. Land in that section is now worth two hundred dollars an acre and up.

After some years, Benjamin left his farm and went to Shueyville, Iowa, nine miles south of Cedar Rapids, and still on the same road, now paved, "U. S. 161." Here he lived the latter part of his life, and died. Shueyville is in Johnson Co., just over the line from Linn Co.

Benjamin carried the mail on Star Route from Shueyville to Cedar Rapids for several years, and until he died. He received two hundred and fifty dollars from the government for this service. He made one trip a day, and six days a week. He left Shueyville at 7 A. M., and arrived in Cedar Rapids at 10 A. M.; left Cedar Rapids at 2 P. M. and arrived in Shueyville at 5 P. M.. All this is a bit interesting as a matter of comparisons with our day of good roads and government service.

Benjamin Kinsey was a farmer; wheelright; tanner; auctioneer; and pioneer school teacher (in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pa.). And as has been noted, he was the administrator for the settling up of his father's estate, a part of which duty was to procure the Warrant and Patent for the land on which his father squatted, and never had received a government title for it.

I am informed by some of his grandsons that he sometimes expressed a desire, also, to return to his native state, Pennsylvania. .

He is interred in Rogers Grove Cemetery, five miles southeast of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. His gravestone is marked:

B. E. Kinzey

Died April 21st, 1877

59 yrs., 5 months, 27 days.

and the gravestone of his youngest child:

Emma M.

Daughter of B. and S. Kinzey

March 21, 1861 — age

5 yrs., 11 months and 18 days.

It is the impression of Mrs. William Scott Kinsey that Benjamin built the old saw-mill which, later, William Scott Kinsey remodeled, changing it from a "sash mill to a mooly mill, and putting in new water wheels." (Rebecca Kinsey so informs the writer through her son Calvin, 1931.)

Wickersham's History of Education in Pennsylvania gives the name of Benjamin Kinsey as one of the pioneer school teachers in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pennsylvania.

Benjamin Kinsey began auctioneering after he went to Iowa.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY KINSEY

Henry Kinsey, 1832—1896, married Catherine Rock of Bedford Co., Pa., a sister of John Rock of Schellsburg, Pa., in 1854; was born in Bedford Co., Pa., and died in Westmoreland Co. (Waterford), Pa.; he received a grade school education; was a shoemaker by trade. His mother's name was Mary (Hammers) Harmon.

Mr. Henry Kinsey dropped dead near the bridge at what was then Samuel McKelvey's store, while on his way to fill the position of Inspector on the Election Board. He was alone when he dropped, face forward, to the ground. His son Wade passed him while on the way to the Oak Grove schoolhouse where the election was to be held., he remarking that he would walk slowly, taking his time. While his arrival was awaited, some one on looking up the road, observed him lying prostrate in the road. On the arrival of Mr. Kohn Austraw, and Cicero L. Kinsey he was found to be dead.

Mr. Kinsey came to the valley from Bedford County, resided for a while in Ligonier, then moved to Waterford where he resided for the rest of his life, and where he plied his trade.

Interment in Green Mountain cemetery. In politics, a staunch Democrat; was wise, and hard to down in an argument.

JOS. F. KINSEY and SYNTHIA TAYLOR KINSEY

Joseph F. Kinsey, 1840—1915, married twice; first, to Synthia Ann Taylor (1839—1887) in 1864; second, to Elizabeth Ann Shull, in 1889. He received a grade school education; was a farmer; blacksmith; and stone mason. He was a good all-round mechanic, and a speedy worker with great endurance.

He is interred in the Helixville Cemetery, Bedford Co., Pa., where he last lived.

3. WILLIAM M. KINSEY, May 3, 1943—July 3, 1890.

2. HENRY KINSEY, 1804—1876.

1. JACOB KINSEY, 1769—1851.

Never married; lived with his mother until his death which occurred in the small house which stood on the south side of the "Pike," now the Lincoln Highway, on the old Major Burns property (later owned by Albert Fyan of Bedford, Pa.), four miles west of Schellsburg, Pa. Interred in the Schellsburg Cemetery on the family plot of his parents.

He was a practical man with tools; and did considerable butchering in the community; threshing with the flail; and a general farm hand.

A little incident. When a young man about eighteen years of age, he carried a front quarter of beef from a practically grown animal, from Schellsburg to his home, on his shoulders. His first stop to rest was after a stretch of about four and one-half miles. It was five miles home. To rest, the beef was placed over a corner of a rail fence where the lane left the main road, and leading home by the widow Thomas' place (later owned by Henry Stickler).

4 (15) Jessie Pearl Kinsey, April 5, 1894—

4 (16) Susie Kinsey, Aug. 29, 1895—

Jacob Kinsey, 1844—1911, married Kathryn Hofecker (1853—Nov. 22, 1936), in 1871. Grade school education. Farmer; stone mason; and practical mechanic. He hewed out the timber for nineteen barns in his day. This was in the day when timber for houses and barns was hewed with a broad-axe, before saw-mills were available. He built, and assisted in the building of many stone walls for barns, houses, and other buildings. He purchased his father's wheel-right tools, and so did much repairing of spinning wheels, making of spools, fliers, etc.; the rebotoming of chairs with "splits."

For his experience of threshing grain with a flail, see Chapter VII, First History.

He never lived more than ten miles from his birthplace; lived near Helixville, Bedford Co., when he died, July 12, 1911. Interred in the Schellsburg Cemetery.

neer Chairman and Chairman of Price Control Panel of the OPA Office in Butler. He became a Chief Engineer of Bell Telephone Company, which without a formal education, was a marked accomplishment and indicated his aptitude for general learning. He served in the OPA work without pay which was his contribution to the war effort. He was a Presbyterian churchman.

The writer was a lifetime, intimate and more or less closely associated with George K. His was a fine and pleasing personality; friendly and congenial, making friends and holding them. In our judgment, he was the best wit and humorist in the whole Kinsey Clan, and no one could wear a long and sober face in his presence.

John S. Kinsey, 1844—1909, married Esther V. Breyfogle of Iowa; was ten years old when his parents migrated from Pennsylvania to Iowa; grade school education; farmer; moved from Iowa to near Douglas, Butler Co., Kansas, in the fall of 1878; the last year of his life he moved from the farm, five miles southeast of Douglas, into Douglas where he died the following year, 1909. Hence he spent the first ten years of his life in Pennsylvania; the next twenty-four years in Iowa, four miles west of Tipton; and the last thirty-one years in Butler Co., Kansas.

The writer is in possession of a number of his letters which reveal that he was a good penman; and have proved resourceful in information for this History, as were the other letters of the kin who "went west." These letters were written to the writer's father, from the 60's to the 90's of the last century.

For further personal history of John S. Kinsey, see Chapter VIII of First History.

On one occasion, he drove from his home in Kansas to visit his cousin Anthony Kinsey, five miles south of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. It required a week's time to make the trip one way.

His wife died in the year 1916. They are interred in the Cemetery one-half mile east of Douglas, Kansas.

Sarah Kinsey was born on the old original homestead in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pennsylvania, the year her father migrated to Iowa (four miles west of Tipton); from Iowa she went to Kansas, likely with her father in 1881; in her early married life she and her husband located in the state of Washington. She and her children were helpful in furnishing information for the Kinsey History; received a grade school education.

Anthony Kinsey, 1845—1909, was born in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pa., on the homestead, later willed to his father, and later owned by John Bence; was in his tenth year when he migrated west to Iowa with his father; grade school education; farmer; served in county or township in an official way; married Laura Pulis in 1869, children as given above; interred in a cemetery near his home.

The following incident in his boyhood life will be of interest: As formerly given, his father, and his uncle Dewalt moved to Iowa from Pennsylvania in 1854. One day Anthony was driving one of the wagons, and he either went to get off, or fell off, and the wagon ran over his legs, and to the amazement of all, they were not broken. Where this happened along the way we do not know. This incident he told many a time to his children from whom I have gotten it.

He was an enterprising person all through life; and for further personal history of him, see his father's account. We had the pleasure of visiting Mrs. Kinsey during the summer of 1931. She was helpful also in furnishing data for the History. She was in her seventy-eighth year, well, happy, and a congenial soul. Deceased June 7, 1946, aged 93 years.

George W. Kinsey, 1850—1933, was born in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pa., on the homestead, later willed to his father, and later owned by John Bence; married Ellen Dean, 1876; their children, all boys, as given above; beyond the grades, he took some academic work in "Western Iowa College"; once a teacher in penmanship; farmer.

The following is a portion of a letter from him to the writer, and we give it in part for the history it contains: "I will tell you something about the west. After father died, I went to the extreme west of Iowa, in the vicinity of Sioux City which at that time was a very small village, but now is a large city. I am one among the first settlers here, and we have seen many hardships in those day. The first winter was mild and no snow. But the next winter was the hard one. It commenced snowing and blowing the 15th of October, and kept it up until the cornfields were full above the ears. I husked corn the next April when the sled at places shoved the snow ahead of it. A blizzard those days would last three days and three nights. No one could face them.

"My first corn crop was worth ten and fifteen cents a bushel. We burned corn and hay mostly. There was coal, but no money to buy it with. The grasshoppers ate up what we planted, but in the fifty-five years that I have been here, things have changed. If I live till the tenth of February next I will be eighty-two. I am well for a man of my age. But the stroke left me with poor use of my hand and leg. — My hand is giving out. I could tell you more in ten minutes than I can write in as many hours."

Truly this letter is interesting, and especially for comparative purposes. It is the regret of the writer that he did not get to the western part of the state of Iowa during the 1931 visit to George's nephews near Cedar Rapids. Not knowing that George W. Kinsey was still living, the trip was not planned for further west.

Evidently, his father did not talk much about the trip or move west from Pennsylvania, since George, in answer to my questions, was not able to tell me anything, experiences, or incidents, about the trip west. Does not recall anything of "importance."

This brief biographical account is closed with a few selections of poetry, hobby products:

THAT I MIGHT SEE

I've heard of One who is the Light,
Who ope's the eyes of men;
Who is as radiant dawn to night
When day returns again.
They say He has the Magic Touch;
And Bartimaeus sees.
Thou Son of David, I am such;
My sight wilt Thou release.

They say the Dayspring's in the sky
With healing in his beams:
How ambered vistas feast the eye;
And how His halo gleams.
They sing of blooms, and talk of hue,
And sunny climes for aye,—
O Lord, this would I have Thee do:
I too would see, I pray.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

There's murder and hate, suffering and pain;
There's doing evil that good may come.
Life is "dirt cheap," and the church is vain;
And the home is all out of plumb.
The state is supreme, her god is Dagon,
Or Mammon, or Moloch, — whatever the name.
Her worship is Christless and pagan,
And a brazen, bumptious shame.

There's the "purge"; and the headman's axe,—
A barbarous, and a bygone fate.
The childless are taxed with a super-tax
For failing the might of the state.
The Whites hate the Blacks, the Jew is killed;
And the neighborhood World is a mess.
It's "dog-eat-dog," no matter the guild,—
Tomorrow is only a guess.

(From Signs of the Times)

CALAMITIES

Calamities! Why have them?
Disasters dot the globe.
And who is there to save them, (save)
Like friends of ancient Job?
It's fate to have a cancer;

And bad to have a stroke;
And slim will be your chance, sir,
To have a neck that's broke.

MY COMPANION AND I

I plight anew my love to thee,
And pray the years be sweeter;
I in you, and you in me,
And we in Him completer.
Let's nobly live Life Beautiful,—
Let roses be our token;
I will be thine more dutiful
Before the Tie is broken.

O Sweetness, halt, I too must plight, —
Thy love is my redeeming;
I pray for grace to do the right,
And make it more than seeming.
The marriage-clock is ticking time;
And Life Eternal's looming,—
For Love is Life,—O how sublime—
Today we're in the grooming.

DOWN AT THE CHURCH

A boon so rare: The Worship hour,
Down at the church, surcharged with power.
Down at the church to sing and pray;
And learn to live the Jesus-Way.

THINGS I LOVE

I love to walk with God all day—
As Enoch walked with Him away,—
To walk and talk without concern,—
Agoing on, and ne'er return.
I love to talk with Jesus here,
When sick, or hungry,—He's so near.
I love the child so pure and true,
I want to be just born anew.

I love to live where I can see
The dainty, black-capped chickadee;
And, too, can see the daisies bloom
In God's most spacious outer room.
I love to see God's vaulted skies
So filled at night with angels' eyes;
And love to be alone at night
Awhile with Him who is the Light.

I love to hear the mocking bird;
And tones the pussy willow purred
I love the thunder's clap on high,—
How God His voice doth amplify!

I love the broadcasts day by day
Of uttered speech in roundelay;
I love to see Divine TV.—
The vistas of eternity.

HALTED — WHOA!

When fools get hold the steering wheel,
And off at ninety per, or so,
And meet a post, you sort'o feel
That Wooden Chief yelled out a "Whoa!"

At break-neck speed, their car was ditched, —
Thus Nature halted all the fools.
When they awoke, all taped and stitched,
They knew they'd broke the highway rules.

IT IS BETTER

It is better to eat of the fruits and the meats
Than to chew on the rag, or be biting the dust.
It is better to quaff of the milk and the sweets
Than to drink of wrath's bowl; or be coating with rust.
It is better to hunger, and share what you've got
For the sake of the needy in far away lands;
If they, too, can have drink, and a roast in the pot,
For Christ's sake, and their sakes through your kind helping hands.

It is better to lift than to sit idly by;
To continually fault, and to kick and to knock.
It is better to live for a purpose, and die,
Than to live just to eat; and to be only a mock.
It is only by purposeful living you count,
Though the years be but twenty, or eighty, or more.
It is what you have done, and the way you surmount
That will rate you a star with the heroes of yore.

It is better to heal than to hurt and to harm,
What a boon from high heav'n so incarnate in you.
It is better to speak kindly words with a charm
Than to snub with the tongue, as the backbiters do.
It is better to see what's beyond — the unseen,
As the pure in their hearts see the God of all things,—
Than to grope as the blind; and be low, and be mean,
Only giving to others their bites and their stings.

It is better to loose, and be downed at all cost,
Than to win in life's bout by your being a cheat.
In your loosing you're winning; the winner has lost;
It's a law of our God; for the trickster can't beat.
It is better to live and let live any day
Than to steal and to kill with starvation and shell;
It is better to lack, than to have, aye and aye,
The regrets and remorse of the demons in Hell.

CHEWERS

O yes, there're some, they're just a drag;
You'll always note, behind they lag;
They talk and talk, they're just a brag;
What do they more than chew the rag,
And prove themselves to be a gag.

And others are so mute and mum,
And cold and stiff just like they're numb;
Unlike the guy while chewing gum,
His hammer missed and cracked his thumb
And gave him a delerium.

There never will a hero bud
Who comes from stock of common blood,
Who's no more stable than the mud,
You'll find him just a common dud.

Of all the chewers, white or black,
Or brownn ,or yellow — all the pack
Must yield to one most off the track,
A sort of hypochondriac,—
He is the one who chews tobac'.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT IN GENEALOGY

It may not be out of place, and it is with a deep sense of humility that the writer gives room for the following items:

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION
OF AUTHORS AND JOURNALISTS
Organized to perpetuate the name of Eugene Field and Chartered by the State of Missouri
Certificate of
H O N O R A R Y M E M B E R S H I P

KNOW ALL MEN, by these presents, that:

Rev. William Kinsey having by his writings made an outstanding contribution to contemporary literature; and the Board of Governors of the Eugene Field Society being desirous of granting recognition to Authors who distinguish themselves in the field of letters; and the Board of Governors having adopted a resolution to that effect at one of its regular meetings;

Now, therefore, I, John George Hartwig, National President of the EUGENE FIELD SOCIETY, by authority vested in me by the Board of Governors, do hereby confer on the Author whose name is above written, an HONORARY MEMBERSHIP in the EUGENE FIELD SOCIETY, with all the rights and privileges to that membership belonging and appertaining.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto affixed my signature as National President of the Eugene Field Society, at the Eugene Field House, (where Eugene Field lives,) in the City of St. Louis, and the State of Missouri, on this 30th day of August in the year of Our Lord 1941.

John George Hartwig
National President

She was always an interested historical cooperative; always alert and on the lookout for historical data. She had a knack of knowing what was of importance, would collect and clip and turn over the data to the Historical Committee. Certain pictures, and other historical facts would not be in this History but for her interests and cooperation. She has made distinctive contributions. She, like many others, has the Committee's appreciation.

GARFIELD SMALL

HESTER LOUISE SMALL

Hester Louise was born in Napier township, Bedford Co., Pa.; married Garfield Small, 1904; grade education. She was a sunbeam of a personality, and added a fine contribution to the Kinsey descendants. Children:

CLIFFORD EUGENE SMALL

VERA SMALL MCCOY

JANIS RUTH SMALL

- (6) James Garfield Small, Jan. 22, 1916— ; married Betty Martin; two children; Mary Shirenn, May 15, 1946, and Mark James, Nov. 13, 1950; A. B. degree (majoring in Geology), Mackay School of Mines, University of Nevada; Jewelry Store Manager; Military Service: Captain (Battery Commander) Army of United States, eight years total service; instructor in Genuine Identification and Evaluation at the Gemological Institute of America for five years; member of the American Gem Society, Registered

Jeweler, Certified Gemologist, Fellow Gemological Association (Great Britain); address: 312 Hinsdale, Fayetteville, North Carolina.

- (7) Janis Ruth Small, April 14, 1929— ; married Thomas O. Moss; two sons; graduate Richland Twp. High School, 1947; address: R. D. 3, Box 217, Johnstown, Pa.

It will be noted that the Garfield and Louise Kinzey Small family has a large and honorable record of educational achievement — all the living sons and daughters are high school, college, and university graduates; trained in varied lines, as drafting, nursing, instructors, supervising; also filling creditable positions. How the famed Jean Frazer would be proud of such a set of great-great-great grandchildren. This family of Frazer descendants commands the admiration and respects of the Kinsey Clan.

John Kinsey, 1864—1951; was born in Somerset Co., Pa.; married Jessie Penrose; wife died 1947; local normal school education, leading to Professional certificate; resided in Johnstown, Pa. Mr. Kinsey taught in the rural schools, mostly in Napier and Juniata townships, for 20 years. He won the reputation of being a good, practical school teacher. And to this the writer can bear testimony since he was his pupil for a number of years. He had good methods in teaching, and his pupils learned rapidly as a rule. In fact, after having taught for 17 years myself — from the rural school through to college — I marvel that he, as well as other rural teachers, could teach so much, having ungraded conditions. Mr. Kinsey was a fine pensman, a good singer, had a congenial disposition, and never failed to moralize in his teaching. Some of the religious ideals of the writer were occasioned by this teacher whom he now delights to honor in a special way. Long live the ideals he held up, and the morals he taught. Many of the best things he taught were extra-curricular. He was of the Lutheran faith. Interment in Richland Cemetery.

C. Ernest Kinsey, 1891— , was born at Armagh, Pa.; an educator, a professor, and school administrator, ranging from the rural school through and including college. His training for the vocation of a professor and school administrator is as follows: grade education; high school; graduate of Edinboro State Teachers College; Pennsylvania State College (now Pennsylvania State University), B. S. (in education), and M. E. ibid, and work done toward the Doctor's degree, ibid; student Grove City College, and the University of Michigan; he also holds the following certificates marking achievements in training, and eligibility for school administration: State Permanent Certificate; Normal School Certificate; College Permanent Certificate; School Principal's Certificate; Secondary School Principal's Certificate; Supervising Principal's Certificate; Superintendent's Letter of Eligibility.

C. ERNEST KINSEY

As a Professor and School Administrator, he taught, and supervised from 1908 to June 1, 1953 (when he retired) with the exception of the World War I period.

He organized and started the Cherry Hill and Montgomery High Schools, Indiana County, Pa.

He conducted Summer Normal Schools for teachers, summers of 1916 and 1917.

He consolidated all the one-room schools of Armagh Borough and East Wheatfield Township into three graded schools, "the most completely consolidated school system in Indiana County." Was Supervising Principal of the Armagh-East Wheatfield Joint District for fourteen years.

Was elected to the faculty of Indiana State Teachers College in 1937, and remaining until July 10, 1939. Teaching field: Philosophy of Education and Sociology.

Organizations Membership Record—Member of P. S. E. A. and N. E. A. Twice president of the Indiana County Branch of the P. S. E. A. Member of the Kappa Phi Kappa, Phi Sigma Pi Fraternities.

He returned to the Armagh-East Wheatfield District as Supervising Principal in 1948. The District was enlarged by adding West Wheatfield Twp., Buffington Twp., and Brush Valley Twp. Under Prof. Kinsey's administration a $2,000,000 Consolidated High School was started.

Prof. Kinsey's teaching fields principally were Education, Social Studies, English, and General Science. Except the sixteen months which he served in World War I, his was a life-long record as an Educator. He had a sympathetic understanding of teachers' and pupils' problems. His influence through moral precepts and extracurricular ideals upon the pupils and students in their character-forming years over the wide span of years has doubtless been a contribution of inestimable value to the future citizenry of the community.

The Kinsey Clan has not produced very many secular school educators, the great calling and vocation that it is; but the small group of pedagogues are grateful for the record of C. Ernest Kinsey who is a marked credit and honor to the Clan as a whole, and to the circle of teachers in particular.

C. Ernest Kinsey's World War I Service Record — He enlisted in the Army, Private, 309 Supply Co., Q. M. C., A. E. F., December 13, 1917. (At this time he was principal of the Cherry Hill Township High School, Indiana Co., Pa.) He arrived in Camp Johnston, Florida, Christmas Day, 1917. Was sent to Newport News, Va., May 19, 1918. Thence he was sent to France. After nine months in France, he was returned to the States, and discharged April 5, 1919, at Camp Dix, and returned home that night.

A distinct and peculiar joy naturally filled his heart over the fact that the war was over, and that he could return home to his loved ones again. Too, that he had served his country, did his duty, and was honorably discharged. But, alas, the erect body, and quickened step, and the filial smile of the son was suddenly changed — head and shoulders drooped, smiles disappeared, and tears of joy turned to tears of keen sorrow at the sad news: "Mother is not here, she passed away two weeks ago." And "Sister and her husband also have passed away." Says Ernest: "To me personally this was the great tragedy of my military experience." Here we draw the curtain over his World War I experiences.

C. Ernest Kinsey is of the Methodist Faith. His present address is Armagh, Pa.

Of W. Wilson Kinsey it must be said that he played an important part in the Kinsey Organization as Recording Secretary for many years. He figured in the Organization in this capacity from its inception. He was faithful in his official capacity; loyal as a kinsman; and a booster for its purposes and goals.

By the keeping of proper and correct records as of the Minutes of the Organization, he has contributed to a reliable and important source of historical data for Kinsey History, as Minutes per se always are. Such important services must not be overlooked, nor praise and appreciation delayed or forgotten. Cousin Wilson served seventeen years as Recording Secretary, longer than any other secretary to date. Let any and all Kinseys emulate him, and any official or lay person who is loyal and devoted and contributing to the on-going plans and program of the Kinsey Corporation. Let us not fail in pre-mortem flowers and appreciation.

MRS. MARGARET
IRENE BATES

Margaret Irene Kinsey, 1902—, married Earl B. Bates, June 7, 1922, Cumberland, Md.; was widowed Feb. 7, 1945; education: grade schools, high school, college (Indiana State Teachers College), B. S. degree in Education, 1954; has 12 years' experience to date (1956) — in Ligonier Twp. Elementary Schools; a Methodist; children:

- (1) James Earl Bates, Aug. 10, 1923—, married Laura Lou Courtney; graduate of Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa., chiropodist; military service: 1943-1945 in U. S.; address: 5916 Greene St., Philadelphia 44, Pa.
- (2) Margaret Jean Bates, Nov. 22, 1925—, married John

W. Rose Jr.; high school education; housewife; address: R. D. 1, Stoyestown, Pa.

- (3) Doris Marie Bates, Oct. 7, 1932— ; education: high school and Lewistown (Pa.) Hospital of Nursing; registered nurse (R. N.); address: Ligonier, Pa.

A note of commendation must be given Mrs. Bates for her achievements. After being widowed she continued her college work and took up the work of an educator. Domestic duties and responsibilities, including the rearing of three children; plus completing her college work and training for teaching in the public schools, in the face of advancing years; religious and civic interests; Clan responsibilities; etc., all ear-mark her as having noble aims and high resolves, and as having pluck and determination. We cite her as another example for Kinsey posterity. Congratulations!

Ford Frank Kinsey, 1903— , born in Ligonier, Westmoreland Co., Pa.; married Mabel Florence Jones, Oct. 3, 1920; Ligonier Twp., Westmoreland Co.; grade school education; auto mechanic, in business since 1920 at the same location, 304 East Main Street, Ligonier. At present: Parts — Wholesale and Retail; Charter Member Ligonier Library Association; Member Ligonier Valley Fire Company No. 1 since 1926; Trustee of First Evangelical United Brethren Church since 1927; Member Ligonier Borough Council Two Terms (1946-1954); President Boy Scout Troop 2 since 1940; Delegate to General Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church in 1946 when the two denominations united; Member of the Ligonier Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Church affiliation: Evangelical United Brethren Church.
Hobby: Hunting.

Traveled in 30 of the 48 states.

Ford Frank's business, civic, community, and church activities bespeaks the type of citizen Mr. Kinsey is. The reasons for his taking such root in the community are obvious. He is one of the practical Kinseys with marked manhood. His tribe is needed so badly.

He is linked up with numerous other activities, as Rotary Club, Fort Ligonier Memorial Foundation, Etc., Etc. He was a leading figure in getting established the present Waterford Water System, henceforth forestalling typhoid fever epidemics in the village of his birthplace. This fine achievement was performed in the 1930's.

"His friends number in the thousands" — THE LATROBE BULLETIN, Aug., 1955. He is not only well and deeply rooted in his community, but the roots reach far and wide. Well known to the Clan are his activities, plans and projects of the Kinsey Corporation. He was so from its beginning. One of the present major projects (we should say "two"), are the promoting the issuance of the New History; and the other, The Museum. He has been untiring and unstinted with time, means, and labors. His philosophy is one of Idealism and Realism. And particularly at present would we emphasize his Museum interests. A most congenial, and winsome personality, winning and holding friends through a magnetic personality. What the editor here has said he has experienced in a friendship, observed and learned. Another worthy for emulation.

Mr. Glenn Kinsey is another versatile and practical Kinsey, having native ability and capacity; mechanically inclined and skilled. Perhaps his best field is auctioneering and salesmanship. At each of the recent Reunions he has performed as an auctioneer on the entertainment program, selling parcels and packages brought by Clan members, for the purpose of reimbursing the treasury, and entertainment as per design. That he proves himself as a good auctioneer none would gainsay. Then his success in that profession is our best evidence that he is a success, and the champion auctioneer in the Kinsey Clan. He has the earmarks and characteristics of a good salesman, such as, a good personality, wit, humor, pleasantries, and essentially a good strong voice, vibratory and with volume. How a preacher longs for such an asset! Who knows but what he may yet enter the clergyman's field. Many have been the laymen to do so. Billy Sunday, etc., have turned from baseball to the pulpit. No, we are not joking.

The writer knows of only one other auctioneer in the Kinsey Clan, namely, Mr. Glenn's great uncle, Benjamine E. Kinsey. (See page 95 of the first Kinsey History.)

Glenn's salesmanship stunts at the Reunion proves him to be capable of being an entertainer, impersonator, and booster of the Clan's program and projects.

Laura Myrtle Kinsey, 1907—, married Samuel Ross Bills, Sept. 28, 1925, Mt. Pleasant, Pa.; grade education and high school (two years); hobby: writing poetry; nature study: reading; Evangelical United Brethren; homemaker; children:

- (1) Robert Bills, June 27, 1926—, married Dolores Bloom; graduate of the University of Pittsburgh (Pa.); chemical engineer; military service: World War II, Army, Infantry, 1944-1946; address: Ash-tabula, Ohio.
- (2) Laura Lou Bills, Feb. 25, 1928—, married Robert J. A. Pratt; high school graduate (Latrobe, Pa.); receptionist - telephone operator; artist - oil painting; address: (not determined).

Laura Myrtle has distinguished herself as a poet, one with natural talent and of more than ordinary ability. Her genius won for her membership in the Fort Ligonier Poetry Society, an organization affiliated with the Poetry Society of Great Britain and America. The purpose of the Society is "to bring together women interested in writing poetry, to promote higher standards of poetic creation and to study verse techniques.

In our humble judgement she has a good poetic pattern; has a natural use of epithets; recognizes lofty subjects, and can elevate the more common ones; is free from the mechanical use of pious platitudes and the shuffling of clouds and leaves. We are proud of this poetess, and take space to do her honor.

By permission of the Fort Ligonier Poetry Review we are herewith printing a few of Myrtle's poems, and they will speak for themselves, and of her talent:

Remarks: The few selections consist of poetic patterns as regular poems, a Sonnet, Couplets, Tercets, Quartrains.

HIS PRESENCE

When God bends low, amid the trees,
To whisper softly in my ear,
My cares depart; my heart's at ease.
When God bends low, amid the trees,
The voice of Him, like zephyr breeze,
Says, "Peace." My soul then knows no fear,
When God bends low, amid the trees,
To whisper softly in my ear.

RESPLENDENCE

In God's full earth, what beauty meets the eye!
I could not fail to see it, should I try.
How nature fashions pictures, real and grand,
Unequaled by the skillful artist's hand
Or anything which mankind can supply.

On early misty morn the dewdrops lie
In silver sheets beneath a pale gray sky;
The globose pearls bend grasses to the sand
In God's full earth.

When lo! the sun climbs over mountains high
To multiply the gems no wealth could buy;
The pearls and silver change to diamond strand!
To dazzle me, as there in awe I stand
At only one of beauties I draw nigh
In God's full earth.

REINCARNATION

In percept I can hear Dame winter wail
A last shrill cry. It may be fierce because Hereto her cachinnations have been mild
In Eastern clime. The leafless trees have writhed
In tortured sleep, akin to her own throes
In fitful dreams. Her icy clutch grows weak;
Her powers fail; but ere she dies, an heir

Is born . . blithe Spring! with beauty unsurpassed!
The catkins on the willows wave with joy,
And balmy breezes come to rock the cradle.

APRIL HAS TANTRUMS

(After reading Hal Borland's "An American Year")

Is April Spring? It may be. Who can tell?
Red maple shoots may burst tomorrow; more,
Fat lilac buds are awaiting at my door
For warmer sun to break their winter shell.
Though I detect a balmy, earthly smell,
This problem child may have some tricks in store;
Her promises she has not kept before
And raw northeaster brings a chilly spell.
A snowstorm? No! How fickle can she be?
Yes, fire will glow upon my hearth tonight.
The tender horsetails, with their "flesh-pink thumbs,"
Will shiver; peepers will not call to me.
But I must not exaggerate their plight;
Though unpredictable, Spring always comes.

What a record Dr. Frank R. Kinsey, M. D., has made by the time of reaching forty years! In his early twenties he had important decisions to make, vocationally in particular. What am I going to be? How shall I invest my life? Whom and when shall I marry and establish a home? Whence the money to train and prepare for a worthy and righteous vocation? Etc., etc.

His father suggested that he work with him and learn the stone-masoner's trade; but that had no appeal. Revealing his aims to his father, and in reply to father's question as to the cost of such preparations (for a good medical training), and the some five or six thousand dollars it would cost, father replied: "Where in the hell are you going to get the money?". The ambitious youth replied, "Earn what I can; borrow, etc."

So he did; and thus began preparations for a worthy and remarkable career, namely, a Christian Physician. During his years of preparation he practiced thrift and self-denial. When many fellow students sported and spent, Dr. Frank worked and earned. When others rode home from College, he thumbed his way (wasn't above riding on a Beer Truck at times, — for the way was long from Philadelphia to home). Once when the ground was snow-covered, and he was ready to thumb his way back to Philadelphia, father handed him five dollars, saying: "Take the bus." (This was five hundred cents more than the writer ever got from his home, in money. Our homes consisted of large families, were humble; and we never expected help from our homes, only sympathy and well wishes.) Why does the writer reveal these glimpses of youth and preparations for life? By so doing we may help others of our kin not to loose heart when the way of the future looks dark or discouraging. If parents have given a Christian heritage, health, and character, one is better off than receiving money only.

The writer has no apologies for elaborating on life's virtues, and wherever and in whomever they are exemplified, whether in a minister, physician, stone masoner, laborer, or housewife we hold them up as incentives to the young kinfolk for emulation. "Where there's a will there's a way," especially when the Lord is taken into one's life.

Dr. Frank R., and Mr. Frank B., have a common witness in that their decisions for their lives — What to be? How prepare? Whom to marry? Where locate? Etc., etc. — all seem to have been decided rightly.

The writer's relationships with Dr. Frank have been intimate and close. We have had many interests in common, namely, Religion, Education, History, Clan Projects, Etc., all of which have been ties binding us together. Besides the writer had the honor of attending his Medical College Commencement in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1943. He was a member of a class of 142 graduates. It was indeed an inspiration to hear him, along with his classmates, solemnly take the Hippocratic Oath for medical doctors, wherein they pledge themselves to the needs of the patient first; an oath or pledge originating and used since the Fifth Century, A.D. It is a good earmark of the nobleness and honor of the high calling of a physician.

We were greatly interested throughout the graduation exercises; and jubilant over the fact that another Kinsey is embarking upon a worthy vocation of a professional class. He came through his training with a good and honorable average; in health and vigor. The writer remembers giving this cousin a bit of advice, as follows: "Take care of your health, don't break yourself down through over-study, for what will it profit to come out of your training with a Diploma in a sick hand."

Dr. Frank is making his mark, and a name for himself. He is untiring in the interests and progress of the Kinsey Corporation. He is congenial and democratic, and a friend of all.

A second honor bestowed upon the writer was an invitation to Dr. Frank's wedding which took place in the Christian Church, Laughlintown, Pa., reserved seats if you please. The services were formal, graceful, dignified and inspirational. The family, and especially the brothers showed their appreciation and love for an honored son and brother by their perfect and graceful carrying out of the rules governing such an occasion. The wedding ceremony, the reception, the serenading even, all were tops, and occasioned a most delightful fellowship of kin-folks and friends. Apparently and manifestly Dr. Frank and Virginia were gotten off to a good start.

Wade Hampton Kinsey, Jr., 1916—, born in Ligonier Twp. (Waterford), Westmoreland Co., Pa.; married Mabel Jean Stoner, Nov. 25, 1937, Ligonier, Pa.; education: one year of college, Army University Training Center, six months, Florence, Italy; hotel manager, salesman, Memorial Park manager; hobbies: hunting and fishing; military service: inducted into the Army at New Cumberland, Pa., Oct. 14, 1943, served in the 337th Inf., Co. G, 85th Division (Italian Camp); service connected: North Africa, Italy, Switzerland, Holder of Bronze Star, Combat Infantry Badge, three campaign stars, Mediterranean Theater; a Methodist churchman; member F. & A. M., Kiwanis; address: R. D. 3, Reynoldsville, Pa.

Wade H. Jr. has a Kinsey distinction that most Kinseys cannot boast of, namely, a faithful letter writer. At least, that is the writer's experience. Most of the Kinseys are afflicted with "No-Write-itis." Wade H. has done quite well corresponding with the writer, in general social correspondence. In one of his letters, while in the Army in Italy, he enclosed an Italian Easter Greeting, and also a poem written by himself. It is to the poem that I am calling attention. He disclaims being a poet, or near one. Normally, with many persons, there comes some poetic inspiration. It did to Wade H. while in the military service in a foreign land. It is easily understood how a soldier boy under the conditions would more or less commune with his God and the divine. The following poem was thus written and mailed the writer in 1945:

PERPETUALITIES

Still shines the sun as brightly now
As when the heav'ens and earth were made.
Still blows the breeze and falls the rain,
And comes the coolness of the shade.
And yet the Spring is crowded in
By living seeds that dormant lay.
And Autumn with her vivid scenes
Precedes the Winter, bright and gay.
Still comes the tide in rise and fall;
And nature's children yet abound.
Remaining hills, and vales, and streams
On earth's horizon can be found.
Still stands the promise of the life
Beyond the brink of earthly days.
Still stand the lessons of the past
Alluring man to better ways.
Tho foolish man, in selfish urge
Corrupteth in his little while;
Still such remain for future man,
Thanks, God, for things man can't defile.

—Wade H. Kinsey, Jr.

It will be noted that the poem is a Long meter, four feet of two syllables each to each line. The rhythm is perfect. The writer changed but four words only, in the second stanza, to perfect the rhyme, which did not change the thought. It leads to a good climax. We hold it to be a good poem; and congratulate the author. (The poem, not exactly a lyric, can be sung to any Long Meter tune, as for example, "Just As I Am Without One Plea"; Doxology; etc.)

His interests in our Clan has been tops also. The writer has received fine encouragement and sympathy from him in making permanent Kinsey records and facts in the form of a History. The Historical Committee has his blessing on its work. He is broadening his life by widening his interests. A booster and faithful attendant at the Reunions, and official and Committee meetings. At the present time (1956) he is serving in the capacity of Recording Secretary.

His various occupations shows his versatility and adaptability. He would hardly be a Kinsey if hunting were not a hobby of his. Hunting and Fishing seem to be hang-overs of the life of the early Kinsey when the butcher shop was to be found in forest and stream. A good churchman, good business man, a practical man is he.

Edison Blair Kinsey, 1900—1954, was born near Wayne, Ohio; married Mildred Dailey, 1921, oil pumper; grade and partial high school education; deceased; World War veteran; war record as follows:

Edison Blair Kinsey—His Patriotic Services in World War I.

Entered service at Toledo, Ohio, May 3, 1917.

Stationed at San Benito, Texas, on the Rio Grande River, with Company G, 26th Infantry of the Regular U. S. Army.

Left Texas in June, 1917, for Europe to enter the World War service.

The 26th Infantry was one among the four regiments comprising the First Division to participate in the World War. These were the First American Troops to enter Europe (France); and the first troops in the trenches, October, 1917.

He landed at St. Nazaire, France, June 28, 1917. This was Gen. John J. Pershing's own Division, all composed of the Regular U. S. Army.

He was honorably discharged April 8, 1919, from the Regular U. S. Army at Camp Sherman, Ohio.

He was gassed April 13th or 14th, 1918, by chlorine gas, near Montdidier, France. Was gassed either by a faulty gas mask, or else by taking the mask off too soon. This was on the Marne front. He was in different field hospitals (First Aid Stations); thence was taken to Base Hospital Number 18 at Limoges where he remained for thirty days. Thence he was taken to St. Nazaire for eight or ten days, awaiting a ship for America. He was brought to a hospital in Norfolk, Va., where two weeks were spent. Thence he was taken to U. S. Hospital No. 8, Otisville, N. Y., where nine months were spent. Thence he went to Camp Sherman, Ohio, where he was discharged.

From October, 1917—April, 1918, with the exception of six or seven weeks, he was continuously at the front, or near it.

He was in the same regiment as that of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. Major Roosevelt was over the First Battalion; while Edison was serving in the Second Battalion; but saw Mr. Roosevelt every day.

Edison was within one rod of the first man killed in his Company.

"The toughest experience in the war was in the hand-to-hand fighting, killing one another, slaughtering one another."

Another experience, among the thousands, was to live in a dug-out for two weeks, underneath a cemetery. He slept on narrow shelves of earth, with a bit of a board to prevent him from rolling out. The water had to be pumped out of this dug-out continuously.

In another dug-out, while asleep on inch boards over about four feet of water, a rat came and chewed a hole into the blouse pocket by the arm-pit, and chewed at a letter received from home. When he awoke in the morning, he observed what the intruder had done. "But rats were not the only intruders."

Such were some of the experiences of war, and as Sherman said, "War is hell."

Edison B. Kinsey was one of our kin to have participated in the World War overseas. C. Ernest Kinsey was another; also, John C. Kinsey, etc.

War is bad and has never settled anything. All honor to the soldier boys of the past of whatever war. But we are glad for the newer patriotism of the present day. I refer to the patriotism which is in keeping with the Kellogg Peace Pact (1929) by which instrument the leading nations of the world have agreed to settle international difficulties and disputes, not by war, but by pacific means. He who advocates war today is, in fact, without the law, and behind the times. He is not patriotic. War is the abuse of force, and not the use of it, as in maintaining law and order—whether among individuals, or nations. The signatory nations of the Peace Pact have decided on civil methods for settling their troubles. Praise the Prince of Peace for that! The newer, higher, patriotism of this day stands for peace, not war, for law and order among the family of nations of the earth. Many are slow at realizing this.

The prophecy of learning war no more is slowly being fulfilled. The doctrine of the brotherhood of man is better than enmity and strife.

Edison Kinsey's great, great-grandfather; and great, great-grand mother were both born in Germany, 1769. His great-grandfather, and great-grandmother were of full German descent. His grandfather and grandmother, also, which leaves his father pure German; and himself, at least, half German. And still he was called upon to fight the Germans, the people and country of his ancestry. Of course he was not responsible for this. But it helps us to see that surely there is a lack of a proper appreciation of the peoples of the earth.

Franklin said, "There never was a good war or a bad peace." We must end war; and in this connection it is very fitting to quote from the General in whose Division Edison Kinsey served. Mr. Pershing says, "The world does not seem to learn from experience. It would appear that the lessons learned from the last six years should be enough to convince everybody of the danger of nations striding up and down the earth armed to the teeth. But no one nation can reduce arms unless all do."

"Unless some such move be made, we may well ask ourselves whether civilization does not really reach a point where it begins to destroy itself and whether we are thus doomed to go headlong down through destructive war and darkness to barbarism."—Gen. John J. Pershing, Dec. 29, 1920. And with him, another General of the Great War, "I should be a traitor to my country if I did not do everything in my power to abolish war."—Gen. John F. O'Ryan.

So we do not wish to minimize the service rendered by any of the boys of past wars; but let us all remember that when we join with Mr. Pershing, and others, in the great struggle for universal peace, in the writer's humble judgment, we are rendering a greater service to the world than by war. Let each one of us "Be a hero in the strife" for peace, universal peace. The Prince of Peace declares for "good-will among men."

Edison passed away prematurely, when he was nearing fifty-four years, being gassed in World War I doubtless shortened his days. He was mechanical, and a good carpenter. Resided in Wayne, Ohio.

Mr. Ralph P. Kinsey is to be classified along with the many others of our kin for his interest and cooperation in assembling data for the History. The data of his immediate kinfolk came in after the Introduction and first part of the History was printed and proof-read. So at this point, under his biography, we give commendation to him for his loyalty and fine cooperation.

It is noted too that he, like his father who was the writer's school teacher for several years, is a fine pensman, neat and precise, which qualifies one for secretarial work.

Jeanne Elizabeth Kinsey; 1928— , born in Waterford, R. D. 1, Ligonier, Pa.; married C. Edward Boyd, Jan. 11, 1954, in Waterford; education; grades, high school, Business College; legal secretary; address: R. D. 2, Ligonier, Pa; member of the Church of the Brethren. Her husband is a wood and cabinet maker, and served in the Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

Jeanne has always been a faithful worker and enthusiast in the Kinsey Organization. She has served very faithfully as Corresponding Secretary for the Organization. Great praise and credit is due her for the unstinted labors she performed on the incorporation of the Organization in the way of typing and secretarial work for the Committee on Incorporation. Jeanne is a jewel of a Clansman (or should we say — woman). Would that we could show more appreciation to those who bear heavy burdens, and willingly fill responsible positions. It is a refined and cultured grace to be appreciative. May Jeanne's tribe increase. Her hobby: embroidery and handwork aptitudes.

APPENDIX

Appendix II in the First Kinsey History of the Jacob Kinzzy (Kinsey) Descendants there is a copy of a warrant for a survey of land in Bedford County, Pa. for Philip Kinsey of Philadelphia, Pa. It was issued Jan. 26, 1772. If it was ever settled upon is not known, at least, at present.

We now report that the original copy of the warrant for the survey, in script, and signed by Richard Penn, is in the possession of the writer, and is to be placed in the museum.

(B)

Under Appendix III in the First History also, under the caption "Kinseys In America", the following paragraph appears:

"We find that John Kinsey came from England in the boat 'Kent' to Burlington, N. J., —See 'The Abridged Compendium of American Genealogy', Vol. II, p. 54. So far as we know or can find, this was the first Kinsey to come to America."

In connection with the above, the following Deed from Indians to early settlers will be of interest: In the Recorder of Deeds office, Philadelphia, Exemplification Book No. 7, contains the following Indian Deed: Indians to Elizabeth Kinsey—To all P'Pons to whom these presents shall come we Wesakesons Cutte, Pesakeson Colekickamin and Ojerickqua owners of the great Island lying before Shackesmason in the River Delaware, for six hundred Guilders to uss pd by Elizabeth Kinsey we doe hereby sell, convey apuer confirme and make over to the s Elizabeth and her heirs all ye said island by the quantity what it is reserving only the of hunting, fishing and getting takant upon ye same promising as far as we can save her hoggs from killing and her hay from burning for which care she is to give us every year sixteen muches of Powder and sixteen muches of Rume and we doe by this present writing warrrt ye s plsland to her and hers forever against us and against all persons.

In confirmation we subscribe our hand and seals the 12th day of July 1678.

Wesakesous Cutte
Ojerickqua
Colekickamin
Pesakeson

Sealed, signed, and delivered in ye presence of uss Yruprran mark of Sonytan, Erick, mark of Poleson thomas ffairman
Recorded ye 9th day of 12th mothl 1698-9

Beside the name of each Indian there is a rahter peculiar but interesting design. Unlike the X in use today by persons who cannot write, each Indian was able to make his individual sign.

The above was printed by the Bedford Gazette, and taken from the Keystone Bulletin, published monthly by the Historical Records Survey of Pennsylvania.

There are four things, at least, of interest: 1) The Deed, its wording and spelling; 2) its business transactions with the Indians; 3) Its Grantee, Elizabeth Kinsey; and 4) Its date, being 1678 which is just one year after John Kinsey arrived at Burlington, N. J. It is possible, therefore, for this Elizabeth to have been the wife of John Kinsey. But naturally, why the deed to her, unless she had become a widow within the year?

At any rate, the Deed itself, its provisions, etc. is all interesting; and provides us with a bit of early American Kinsey History.

THE POSTSCRIPT

As the writer and compiler of Book Two of the Jacob Kinsey And Descendants History lays down his pen, and moves away from his typewriter, he wishes to add a Postscript to the Book; one of the most beautiful, and most comforting he has ever reflected upon relative to the Kinsey History. Culled, but unsolicited, from a courteous, casual letter from a beloved cousin, and reads as follows:

“Cousin William, I feel sure through your activity and influence you have done so much to increase the stature of our Clan. The results of your life will long be in evidence in the Kinsey Clan. As a member I am truly grateful.”

—Prof. C. Ernest Kinsey,

The kind of remuneration that goes with one into eternity.

LIFE'S SUNSET

The western sky with bars of gold,
Makes glad my heart as I grow old.
To face such splendor at life's close
As painted there gives sweet repose.

Again the western sky is gold,
A vista for to make me bold,
Reflecting amber far and wide
As comes the time to step aside.

As ends the day so graciously,
So let my embarkation be;
With signs of glory far beyond
When Jesus becks, and snaps the bond.

(Written while watching and meditating on a beautiful, changing sunset.)
